War Production Resumes Today In 5 Chrysler Plants as Strike's Ended.

BULLETIN

AKRON—(AP)—Mayor George Harter conferred today with leaders of 38,000 CIO United Rubber Workers engaged in war production stoppages at Akron's three major rubber companies and announced "it is very hopeful that all workers will be back on the job by tomorrow morning."

(By International News Service)

AKRON — An estimated 4,000 striking CIO-United Rubber Workers unionists went back to work today at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company, as production remained at a standstill in the B F Goodrich company, and Firestone Tire and Rubber company plants.

Return of the Goodyear workers reduced the number of strikers in the three plants to approximately 33,000. A Goodyear spokesman said that about 2,000 on the day shift were prevented from resuming work by picket lines.

Production was still "badly out of balance" at Goodyear, the spokesman said. The company employs 18,000 workers on three shifts.

At Firestone, which employs about 17,000, only a few hundred men were working, while Goodrich was completely down, with 14,000 on strike.

The strikers walked out Saturday in protest against a War Labor board ruling for a 3-cents an hour wage increase instead of the requested 8 cents an hour.

Normal operations at the General Tire and Rubber company's

Mayor Explains Fund Veto; Kyle Hits At Delay

Mayor W. J. Locke explained today that he vetoed Councilman George C. Kyle's parking meter reserve fund ordinance because he felt the present ordinance "sufficiently governs the spending of parking meter funds."

The mayor added his written explanation to the bottom of the vetoed ordinance this morning after being reminded by Council Clerk R. R. Black that he was required to give council his reason for vetoing the bill within 10 days after it was passed.

Kyle previously charged that Mayor Locke had failed to explain his veto within the required 10 days. Council passed the ordinance May 13 which gave the mayor until May 23 to set forth his reason for the veto.

Because May 23 was a Sunday, the mayor said his written explanation today was in time to German Radio Says Nazi Troops Now Garrison Island.

LONDON —(AP)— Reuters said today that the German radio announced for the first time that German troops now are in Sardinia.

The broadcast said the presence of these garrison forces was "made known by reports published in the Berliner Nachtausgabe today. This report stresses "the widely built up and strongly fortified defensive front on the Italian island."

Flees as Car Pulls Cell Window Out

Ashlander Breaks Jail While Waiting Transfer to Reformatory.

ASHLAND—Edward Lewarski, 25, escaped from the Ashland county jail early yesterday while awaiting transfer to the Ohio State reformatory at Mansfield to serve a one to 20 year term for automobile theft.

According to Ashland County Sheriff Dale Hammond, the window in Lewarski's cell was jerked out by a chain attached to an automobile. The sash, he said, was found on the brick driveway along the jail 30 feet below.

The escape was discovered by deputies while serving breakfast to two other prisoners in the same cell block. The sheriff said they claimed to be asleep at the time of the break.

Officers launched an immediate search for the fugitive and his companions who aided him from the outside. It was reported that three men were seen acting suspiciously outside the jail previous to the escape.

The escape was Lewarski's second. He walked away from the Warrensville workhouse on March 26 while serving a six-month sentence after a rape charge was reduced to assault and battery.

He was taken into custody here May 4 by state highway patrolmen following the theft of an automobile owned by Howard Hootman.

Lewarski abandoned his own car near the Hootman residence after patrolmen had shot through the tires and fuel tank while trying to capture him.

HOPE FADING

Conferees In Final Session on Ruml Bill Compromise.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Senate-house conferees have all but abandoned hope of finding a compromise on the pay-as-you-go tax issue, but have agreed to meet again today in another "final effort to break the deadlock."

Chairman Walter F. George, D., Ga., of the senate finance committee, said that if no progress is made in today's meeting there would be little point in continuing the discussions.

President Roosevelt's recent letter denouncing the Ruml plan placed emphasis on the method of distribution of forgiveness. He hinted then, by examples under the Ruml plan, that he would oppose any forgiveness of a flat cancellation basis which failed to grant lower income groups a larger percentage.

Wabash Gives Degree to Director of Censorship.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind.—(AP)—Wabash college conferred an honorary doctorate of laws on one of its distinguished alumni, Byron Price, director of the office of censorship, at its 105th annual commencement yesterday.

Price, born at Topeka, Ind., 52 years ago, was graduated from Wabash in 1912. He is on leave of absence as executive editor of the Associated Press to supervise the wartime censorship.

Panamanian Ship Goes Down Off Coast of U. S.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A medium-sized Panamanian merchant vessel was sunk off the United States east coast by two underwater explosions early in May, the navy reported today. The navy said the explosions were presumed to have been caused by torpedoes from an enemy submarine. Survivors have been landed at Norfolk, Va.

HUNT FOR BOY'S BODY

COLUMBUS—(INS)—City firemen today expected to resume their search for the body of 9-year-old Charles Stevens who drowned in the Scioto river at Columbus Saturday.

You Can Do This, Too, With Pair Of Trousers

Their trousers make water wings for United States Coast Guardsmen, preparing for the day when they may have to swim for their lives from a torpedoed ship. At Miami, Fla., they float about with the bottoms of their trousers tied securely to retain air forced in through the open waist by swinging the trousers overhead. That the trick works is proven by the above photo.

MISSISSIPPI'S CREST CLIMBING

Tributaries Pour Mighty Flood Tide Into Great River; 115,000 Homeless.

(By United Press)

Flood waters of the Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas rivers and their tributaries poured into the Mississippi today, swelling the mighty river to 40-year record peaks with no definite crest in sight.

Flood refugees in northern Illinois and Indiana returned to their homes as the crests moved downstream but farther south dozens of communities struggled frantically to bulwark levees against the rising waters.

Red Cross officials said the number of homeless in Illinois, Indiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Kansas was nearing 115,000.

The crest of the Illinois river reached Peoria, Ill., Saturday sending the waters to an all-time high of 28.8 feet, 11 feet above flood level. Gov. Dwight H. Green sent four additional companies of militia to aid 10,000 war plant employes sandbagging the levees protecting 14 riverside factories.

At Beardstown, Ill. further down the Illinois, officials awaited a 30-foot crest. About 1,700 resi-

EXCHANGE FOR 1,500 EXPECTED

American and Japanese Civilian Trade Being Planned.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A second group of 1,500 civilian American prisoners captured by the Japanese in the Far East may be coming home soon, in exchange for an equal number of Japanese civilians held by the United States.

In announcing that negotiations for the exchange were under way, the state department said yesterday it had proposed at least three more exchanges but the Japanese reply indicated it preferred "for the time being to limit consideration to one exchange and that subsequent exchanges be left for future consideration."

Power Silent On Report Bricker's Lewis Favorite

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Don Power, secretary to Gov. John W. Bricker, said today he knew "absolutely nothing" about the position of John L. Lewis in next year's presidential campaign.

A Washington dispatch yesterday said informed observers believed the mine union leader had decided to back Bricker for the Republican nomination, and Power was asked to comment upon this in the absence of the governor.

PLANE CRASHES

Navy Student Escapes When Ship Wrecks In Landing.

Roger Pioch, a 21-year-old student navy flier at the Mansfield airport, miraculously escaped injury when his plane crashed Saturday while he was making a landing at the airport, it was revealed today.

Pioch, whose home is in Toledo, was on his first solo flight when the low-wing Howard plane he was flying ploughed into the sod run-way at the west side of the field. The plane was virtually demolished, but Pioch came out of the wreckage without a scratch, said E. W. James, airport operations manager.

The student flier apparently lost control of the plane temporarily as he approached the field, but the soft run-way probably added to the landing danger, James said.

Man Finds 25 Pounds of Butter, Turns It in to Sheriff.

FREMONT—(U.P.)—Paging Diogenes!

Louis Rakery, Hessville, O., found 25 pounds of butter on the highway near his home.

He immediately turned it over to Sheriff H. L. Myers.

A Tiffin wholesale grocery truck had lost the butter—worth eight ration points a pound.

RATION FORMS OUT TOMORROW

Mailing of Applications For Book No. 3 To Start; Sugar Confusion Cleared.

Every household in Mansfield and Richland county will receive an application form of War Ration Book No. 3 beginning tomorrow.

Postmaster H. E. Homberger said big stacks of forms have arrived at the postoffice and, starting tomorrow, postmen hope to finish the distribution within the next few days.

A number of applications will be kept at the postoffice to be given persons who do not receive them otherwise. When the application has been completely filled out by the head of the house, it is to be mailed to the address printed on the card with a three-cent stamp on the space indicated. They must be postmarked not later than midnight June 10.

Another rationing problem which was bothering Mansfielders today was that of canning sugar. Scores of local housewives left their work to go to the ration

City Sends Girl Some Of 30,000 Pipe Cleaners

Contributions from Mansfielders were included in the 30,000 pipe cleaners which deluged the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bates in North Canton today following a nation-wide appeal for cleaners to clean the tube through which nine-year-old Joann Bates breathes and keeps alive.

The appeal appeared in the Saturday News-Journal and sent several packages of cleaners to Joann whose supply was running low since restrictions had been put on the production of pipe cleaners.

In addition to the already huge supply of pipe cleaners which have arrived at the Bates home several thousand more have been promised. Her parents believe that the supply will last more than five years.

For the past four years Joann has breathed through a silver tube because tumors in her esophagus became enlarged, interfering with normal respiration.

THREE DROWNED

Tugboat Crew Members Lose Lives in River Collision.

$51,375 Paid For 46 Head Of Cattle At Raemelton Sale

Topping previous cattle sales in Mansfield by a wide margin, the third annual May auction of registered Guernsey cattle Saturday afternoon at Raemelton farm brought a total of $51,375 for 46 animals, one eight-month-old bull selling for $5,500.

The booming livestock market boosted the sale average to more than $1,100 a head, more than double last year's figure. Eighteen Guernsey breeders, including three from the Mansfield area, were represented at the auction which attracted approximately 1,000 persons to the Raemelton show pavilion.

Buyers from at least six states purchased the 46 purebred animals for breeding stock and show purposes.

The sale's record price of $5,500 was paid by a Bucyrus physician for Langwater Arnold, an eight-month-old bull. Bringing the second highest price was Sun Blest Farms Lotus, a 16-month-old heifer, which sold for $5,100.

FOUR COACHES LEAVE RAILS WITH ENGINE

89 Others Injured In Worst Pennsy Line Disaster In Recent Years.

(By Associated Press)

DELAIR, N. J.—A crack Pennsylvania railroad passenger train, roaring north from Atlantic City to New York with nearly 1,300 passengers homeward bound after a week-end at the shore, wrecked on a curve in this southern New Jersey community last night, killing 14 persons and injuring at least 89 others.

At dawn weary workers gave up the search for more bodies and turned to the task of clearing the right of way, blocked since the crash at 10:08 p. m.

And in two hospitals in Camden, three miles south of Delair, police and railroad officials began the grim task of attempting to identify nine horribly mangled bodies, including those of a mother and child to which she gave birth in the wreck. Both were decapitated.

Already identified dead were: C. H. Bohr of New York, conductor on the train.

H. N. Becker of New York, the fireman.

Christian P. Horn of Trenton, N. J.

Bennis Schapiro, Montclair, N. J.

Louis Schapiro of New York City.

Five of the unidentified dead were women.

It was the Pennsylvania's worst wreck in years.

W. C. Higginbottom, general manager of the railroad's eastern division, said a preliminary investigation indicated the engineer was Mayor Goes To Columbus To Confer With Highway Heads.

With the city still awaiting state highway department plans for the widening and resurfacing of sections of South Main street and Lexington avenue, Mayor W. J. Locke said today he probably would go to Columbus Tuesday to confer with highway officials in an attempt to speed up preparation of plans for the project.

It was expected that council would act on the city-state project at a special meeting this week, but since the regular meeting is scheduled for June 1, the mayor said the plans will be submitted to council then if the state has them ready.

The state and city will share the cost of the Lexington avenue-South Main project and the resurfacing of Marion avenue from Glessner to Cline avenues. They are major projects in the city's street program for the summer.

2,000 Tons of Bombs Hurled By RAF Fliers

Dortmund, Industrial City, Principal Target, but Other Areas Are Hit Hard; 38 Planes Lost; North African Bombers Busy, Too.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—In the greatest air attack in history, the RAF dropped more than 2,000 tons of bombs last night on industrial Dortmund and raided other targets up and down the water-logged Ruhr valley of Germany.

Scores of four and two-ton bombs and tens of thousands of incendiaries kindled vast blazes in Dortmund, the smoke of which licked angrily into the sky three miles above the city of 500,000.

The British lost 38 bombers.

The magnitude of last night's operations became apparent early in the evening when watchers on the channel coast saw the procession of bombers pass non-stop for two hours toward their targets.

It gave life to the words of Winston Churchill before the American congress last week suggesting that Germany and Italy might be bombed out of the war:

"Opinion is divided as to whether the use of air power could, by itself, bring about the collapse of Germany or Italy. The experiment is well worth trying so long as other methods are not excluded. Well, there is certainly no harm in finding out. But, however that may be, we are all agreed that the damage done to the enemy's war potential is enormous."

Neatly coordinated with the devastation in the Ruhr were powerful new blows against Italy by Allied planes based in North Africa and the Middle East.

The Ruhr valley which cradles a great percentage of Germany's coal, coke and steel industries already was pock marked from one end to the other by previous British raids which has cut sharply into war production.

Preliminary reports from returning pilots described the assault as highly successful, although observation of the results was obscured by great clouds of smoke which billowed 15,000 feet above the target.

The previous record weight dropped was the more than 1,500 tons unloaded on Duisburg on the night of May 12. That figure, it was said, was far exceeded last night.

Dortmund was last attacked the night of May 4, when approximately 1,350 tons of high explosive were loosed on the city.

The attack marked the resumption of the Allied air offensive against Europe after a one-night lull and coincided with a series of German blows at several places on the British northeast coast which left considerable destruction and some deaths.

The Germans said the main target of their attacks was the ship-building center of Sunderland.

Dortmund is a city of about 500,000 population about 22 miles east of oft-bombed Essen. In addition to being an important industrial center it is the terminus of a canal leading to Ems. It is the site of a great oil plant.

The overnight activity followed the RAF's daylight attacks on coke ovens at Zeebrugge, Belgium.

London enjoyed its first alert-free period Saturday night after six nights of spotty German raiding.

In a Sunday attack, a well-known English town on the southeast coast was raided from rooftop level by 10 fighter-bombers which sprayed business and residential districts with

CONTROL: Americans Turn Back Jap Air Attack Near Attu

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—For the second time within 24 hours, the navy today reported a wave of Japanese bombers over the Aleutians, but added that U. S. fighter planes drove off the squadron, shooting down five of the 16 enemy planes.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Disruption of an attempt by Japanese bombers to delay the final wiping out of their ground forces on Attu indicated today the United States had won control of the sea and air off that Aleutians outpost.

It forecast too, the possibility American bombers soon might roar over the northern Pacific to slam bombs into the big Japanese sea and air base at Paramushiro, whence the raiders presumably came.

But where the 15 twin-engined Japanese bombers went was in doubt. They could have returned to their base, flown on to strengthen the enemy position at Kiska, or some could have been shot down.

Naval spokesmen were noncommittal merely saying yesterday the bombers were "unsuccessful in their mission."

Two U. S. naval vessels bore the brunt of the enemy's aerial assault and may have forced them to withdraw, for the navy said of the raid only this:

"About 15 twin-engine Japanese bombers unsuccessfully attacked two United States surface units operating in the Attu area."

Use of the word "unsuccessfully" indicated the vessels themselves were not damaged. No

ODYSSEY: Sergeant Survives 141 Days In Bush, 3 Mates Die

(By United Press)

SYDNEY—Sgt. Grady Gaston of Alabama told today of surviving 141 days in the hot, arid Australian bush country during which his three companions from a lost bomber died.

Gaston watched his comrades as they drowned or slowly succumbed to the heat and starvation. He traveled 300 miles before being found by natives.

"I never expected to see a human being again," he said.

Returning from a raid last Dec. 1, the Liberator bomber ran into heavy weather and the instruments failed. With gas running low, the crew of 10 bailed out without knowing whether they were over land or sea.

One of the men, Staff Sgt. Charles Workman of Ohio, was killed making the jump. The other crewmen were Lieut. Norman Crosson of Ohio, Lieut. Arthur Speltz of Minnesota, Lieut. Mars Grimes of Boston, Lieut. John Dyer of Boston, Staff Sgt. James Hilton, Sgt. Loy Wilson of Ohio, Sgt. Edward McKeon of New York and Corp. John Geydes of Ohio.

Gaston joined with Grimes, Speltz and Dyer. Their total resources were four bars of chocolate, a jungle knife, a fish hook and line and a few matches.

(Editor's note: The dispatch did not say what happened to the other five men but they presumably separated from Gaston's party and are missing.)

They wandered until they reached the sea, managing to kill a small bullock for food. On Christmas eve and in early Janu-

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, MAY 24, 1943.

The share-the-ride movement is all very well, but it shouldn't extend to bicycles.

The old saying, "Money isn't everything," gains emphasis when you suddenly recall that you left your ration books at home.

It now appears that a lot of unpleasantness might have been avoided if John L. Lewis had never made that $500,000 contribution to the Roosevelt campaign in 1936—he seems to have expected too much for it.

Strikes Lengthen War, Cost Lives

EXTENT to which strikes in war industries can be permitted to continue without too seriously hampering our own military forces and depriving our allies of needed aid is probably the most serious problem now before the people of this country, and their representatives in Washington.

Actual and threatened strikes, involving hundreds of thousands of workers in essential industries, serve to offset the brightening picture in the military field of war operations and might easily render impotent the entire national war effort if permitted to continue.

It is quite probable that in no strike, or threat of strike, is there full understanding that the resultant decreased production would have any material effect on the outcome of the war—or that a strike might have the same result as pronouncing death sentence on some of the boys on the fighting fronts.

Wages—in some instances only a few cents an hour—are ordinarily the subject of controversy in work stoppages, and it is the desire of government to prevent runaway inflation that stands in the way of granting the steady flow of demands for higher and higher wages by union workers in all lines of industrial production.

Mounting prices of commodities, with the dollar already shrinking dangerously in buying power, give an appearance of justification to demands for higher wages, and the fallacy of earlier governmental action in attempting to control prices without establishing ceilings on farm products and wages is now being expensively revealed.

Meanwhile, as May 31 approaches, with threat of a general coal strike, and as reports of crippling strikes come from Detroit, Akron, and other cities, deep concern is felt for the boys who have been called from this and other communities to fight the battles intended to prevent these strikers, and all other Americans, from losing the liberty they now enjoy and becoming the slave workers in an Axis regime—in which a firing squad (or worse) would be the penalty of insubordination.

It is the thought of our young men who are in the fighting services, with realization that many of them must suffer and die, that makes the causes of strikes seem inconsequential in comparison.

Civilian sacrifices, at their probable worst, are mild when placed in contrast with the hardship, danger and suffering of actual warfare.

However unintentional such result may be, it cannot be escaped that EVERY STRIKE WHICH REDUCES, EVEN TO SMALL EXTENT, THE PRODUCTION OF WAR MATERIALS, IS A DIRECT BENEFIT TO THE ENEMY AND SERVES TO DELAY VICTORY, AT THE COST OF MORE LIVES THAN WOULD OTHERWISE BE NECESSARY.

Too Many Visitors at Hospital

HOSPITALS are constantly faced with the problem of what to do about the inclination of some people to "visit" patients more often, and for longer periods than is advisable.

The present plight of Mansfield General hospital, however, in the matter of having too many visitors, is due to shortage of nurses and daily attendants, making it impossible to direct and supervise the scores of daily visitors at the hospital.

In order that members of the patient's immediate family can be given attention during hospital visits, and necessary service kept available for patients, it is being asked that visiting by friends and acquaintances be reduced to a minimum—and that sending a card, letter or flowers be substituted for a personal call.

Visiting ward patients presents a difficult situation at all times, as a patient being called upon may be convalescing, and undisturbed by noisy conversation, while one or more others in the ward may be in critical condition, with requirement for quiet.

Interest in a friend who has been admitted to the hospital is understandable, and praiseworthy, but, under present conditions, thoughtful procedure is to make inquiry of some member of the family rather than to feel it a duty to make a hospital call.

When it is also considered that too much "visiting" usually does the patient more harm than good and that attending physicians are inclined to frown on the practice—except for members of the family—the wisdom of deferring calls until after the friend has returned home from the hospital becomes apparent.

Don't Blame Merchants and Clerks

WHATEVER may be meant by "the simple life," it can't be construed as applying to retail merchandising these days, and the difficulties resulting from shortages, inexperienced help and rationing restrictions are not lessened by the non-co-operative attitude and jumpy nerves of a considerable percentage of customers.

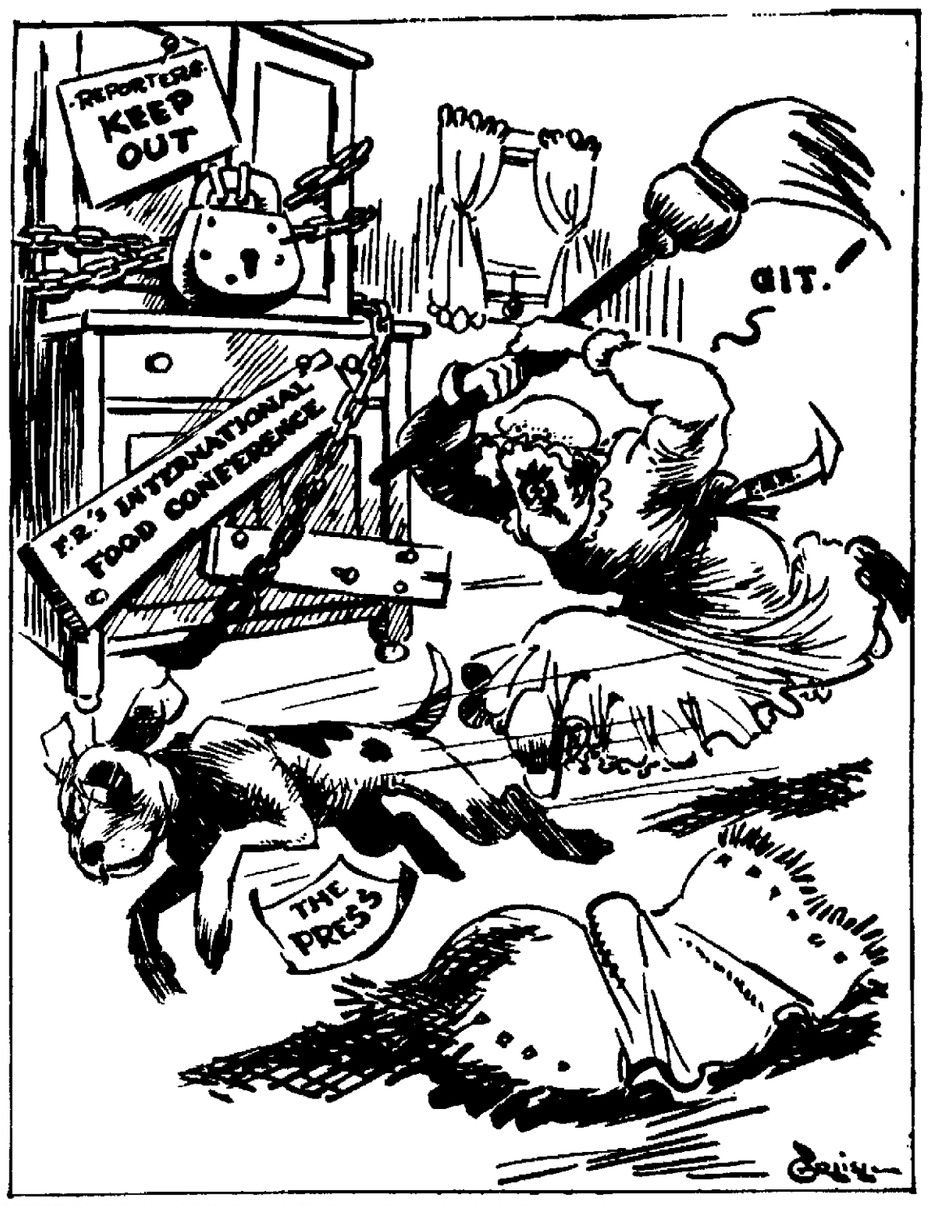
Blue coupons; red coupons; gasoline coupons; No. 17 for shoes; No. 12 for sugar; No. 23 for coffee—on and on—with different expiration dates for each.

In all instances requiring use of coupons, purchasers are expected to have their ration books along, instead of using torn-out coupons, and in some cases—as with shoes—it is made mandatory that the coupon be removed by the merchant or clerk, instead of by the customer.

As coupons, or "points," have to be turned in by merchants to secure replacement of merchandise, the need of care in getting from customers the designated coupon, or number of "points," involved in each sale is quite understandable.

Such changes in merchandising as have come about in meeting war emergencies are unpleasant at the best, but the annoyance can be considerably mitigated by display of a co-operative spirit, willingness to conform to government regulations—and possibly, sometimes, a sense of humor.

OLD MOTHER HUBBARD PULLS ANOTHER BONER



Exclusion Law Disturbs Chinese

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Old-timers on Capitol Hill can't recall when any proposal has caused so little stir in this country and so much abroad as the pending measures to repeal the laws excluding Chinese immigrants.

Diplomats in Washington are watching the progress of these bills like hawks. They could have a profound effect on relations between the "Big Four" of the United Nations right now, and even more far-reaching repercussions on postwar planning.

It's a cinch, too, that Axis propagandists are watching. Yet the pending legislation has received only perfunctory notice in this country.

HERE'S why the measures are so important, according to thoughtful observers of international relations.

Right now, relations with China can best be described as "touchy." Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has done a herculean job of holding dissident elements in line, and keeping China steadfastly in the United Nations ranks.

It is known, however, that a defeatist block in Chungking has been exerting pressure to make a "reasonable" deal with Japan. Japanese propagandists have been fostering this movement with every available means.

Not the least effective of their arguments is the comparative trickle of supplies which has reached China from her Allies since the Burma road was closed.

Failure of British offensive in Burma has also been utilized by the Japanese. They constantly harp on the thesis that China has been virtually abandoned by her Allies, and is the "orphan" of the United Nations.

The action of the U. S. and Britain in renouncing extra-territorial privileges in China helped to counteract such propaganda and gave China some measure of recognition. One remaining barrier to amity and understanding between China and the U. S. is the exclusion law, in effect since 1882. By inference, it says the Chinese are less desirable than immigrants from other nations.

NEUTRAL diplomats say defeat of the bills would give the Axis material for a propaganda field day. They have already made effective use of the racial issue. Japan won Burma by harping on the inferior status of the Burmese and recruited a fifth column that materially contributed to the loss of that vital area.

It is pointed out that Chiang's task in keeping up morale in China wouldn't be easier if the ally with closest friendly ties persists in holding the Chinese inferentially inferior. Old China hands now in Washington say the loss of face would impose a serious strain on Chinese-American relations.

So far, a few anti-repeal statements have crept into the Congressional Record, but proponents of the exclusion repeal measures hope these represent only a handful of Americans, mistakenly fearful of Chinese labor competition.

Actually, only 105 Chinese could enter the country annually under the quota system, if this exclusion law were repealed.

Health and Diet

Effects of Tobacco

PEOPLE who argue about the harmfulness or lack of harm in tobacco should remember it was first used as a medicine—healing rather than harming.

When the Spaniards were introduced to tobacco by the Indians, they found it was used for the treatment of wounds.

The Indians also used it for pains, especially joint pains, and they used it just as we do—by inhaling the smoke.

But all of this is of antiquarian interest. The modern man or woman wants the modern physician to declare whether the use of tobacco is good or bad for them.

Causes Functional Diseases.

Unlike alcohol, tobacco does not cause any permanent organic diseases, only functional ones. In other words, tobacco causes no gross changes in any organ of the body, such as alcoholic cirrhosis of the liver. The functional changes which it produces are very definite. It increases the heart beat, often causing palpitation. It raises blood pressure slightly and creates a spasm of the arteries. For the last reason it is distinctly to be forbidden in cases of pain around the heart—angina pectoris.

As everyone knows from his own first experiences with it, it certainly can cause nausea, vomiting, digestive upsets and a state of shock. On the good side of the ledger, it tends to relieve constipation.

Chewing Tobacco Harmful.

I believe that a number of people, especially those who chew tobacco, have ruined their health for life by creating an inflammation of the stomach and bowel and consequently, malnutrition and underweight.

The key to the whole subject of the use of tobacco is the word "moderation," but that is a very difficult word to define. The trouble with moderation is that people start in and say they are only going to have one cigar or one cigaret, and then they go on to five or six. The chain smoker is certainly not acting moderately.

For nervous, high-strung people and those with a tendency to indigestion or heart pain, I believe tobacco is distinctly bad. For us moderate smokers it is harmless and a joy added to life.

Dave Boone Says:

EVERYBODY owes it to the fighting men on all fronts to cut out unnecessary driving. And all that would be needed to accomplish it would be for the president or the secretary of war to issue a direct appeal to the people of the United States, instead of depending on Mr. Ickes or the OPA who are linked up in the public mind with too much confusion.

When firmness and confidence are needed, the public now gets a list of clarifying rules. And how many do you think there are? Fifty, no more, no less. And with all but two or three carrying a loophole as big as a barn door. There's one telling you you must not drive a car "if public transportation is adequate."

* * *

Did you ever hear a man, woman or child admit that public transportation anywhere at any time was adequate?

* * *

Those fifty rules just increase the public's lack of confidence in the wisdom of the rule makers. One fifty-word order from a single leader in whom the country has confidence would get co-operation in twenty-four hours. And with no need for "clarifying rules."

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, May 24, 1923.

"Human society has never faced a more complex and difficult period than that through which it is now passing," declared President Harding in an address.

John F. Kramer delivered class address at commencement of Butler schools.

Mrs. John Hamilton, 73, died at her home, 247 North Diamond street.

First roasting ears were on market at 80 cents a dozen.

Robert Bell sustained foot injury during pole vault while practicing for track meet.

Runaway horse on North Diamond street attracted considerable attention and comment (Clarence Lindeman can tell you about it).

M. H. Scott went to Atlantic City to attend national convention of candy manufacturers.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The Savannah, first American-built steamboat to cross the Atlantic, left Savannah, Ga., on this date in 1819. The trip took 26 days. The great Brooklyn suspension bridge was opened formally on May 24, 1883.

Churchill Amazes Congressmen By Frankness at Closed Meeting

WASHINGTON—Congressional leaders marvelled at Winston Churchill's frankness when they met with him in a closed-door session after his historic speech in the house of representatives. At the start he said with a grin:

"Ask me anything you like. And don't be afraid to be critical. The more critical your questions are, the better. If it's within my power, I'll answer them."

Congressmen took him at his word, peppered him with questions for more than an hour. Some of Churchill's replies involved highly confidential military information and cannot be repeated. However, he answered all questions straight from the shoulder.

One important point he discussed, which has been aired so much in the press that it is no longer a military secret, is Italy and the probability of internal revolt. The prime minister was optimistic about the prospect of an inside crack-up, partly as a result of heavy air bombardments.

He also emphasized the staggering effect that taking Italy out of the war would have on Germany and Japan, and pointed out that if Italy could be eliminated without too much time and sacrifice, it would greatly weaken Axis defenses.

Among other things, it would cause a collapse of Italian armies in other areas, such as Russia and France—and the prime minister revealed that Italy had around 120,000 troops in the Balkans alone. Because of his own scarcity of troops, Hittler could ill afford to lose these Italian troops on other war fronts.

Roll Call Up Yonder.

THE prime minister prompted quite a chuckle when some one inquired about the hope expressed in his speech for a conference among himself, President Roosevelt, Joseph Stalin and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Where would the meeting take place, Churchill was asked.

"I don't know and I don't care," he replied. "I'm ready to go any place. I've been about everywhere on this earth, and when the roll—what's that expression of yours?—when the roll is called up yonder, I'll be there, too."

Arriving at the Capitol, Churchill informed Kenneth Romney, house sergeant-at-arms, that his speech would be "rather long."

"It may take an hour," he said. "Do you think that's too long? I don't want to wear out the congress."

"Don't worry about that, Mr. Churchill," assured Romney. "Everybody is very anxious to hear you."

Following the address, the prime minister again asked Romney, while walking over to the senate side for luncheon, if the speech was too long.

"I timed you 48 minutes," replied Romney. "We all enjoyed the speech immensely. I am sure no one thought it was too long."

"My remarks read better than they sound," Churchill observed, pointing out that he had avoided oratorical effects in an effort to condense the speech.

Unwanted Passengers.

AFTER the Churchill party arrived in Washington, British Information Service put out a press release which spoke of a pleasant voyage, making no mention of the fact that the ship was lousy.

The name of the ship is censored, but Lady Beveridge does not consider censorable the fact that there were vermin on board. She and Sir William, author of the famous Beveridge plan for social security, were not members of the official party, (her husband was invited by the Rockefeller Foundation to give them his views on pensions) but that did not make them immune. Lady Beveridge confesses that she looks like a plum pudding.

But anyway the vermin were better than submarines, and everybody was thankful.

The Churchill party sets a new British record for quantity as well as quality, numbering 90. It included everybody from the top planning experts of the war office to Steward Longbottom, who is the "batman" to Sir Dudley Pound. That means Sir Dudley has brought along his soldier servant, or personal valet.

But the prime minister has much more than a valet. He has a retinue of seven, including his personal physician, Lord Moran; his private secretary, Mr. Rowan; his personal assistant, Commander Thompson; a clerical officer, a valet, and two detectives.

One of the detectives is none other than the famous Inspector W. H. Thompson, who, when London police found a dead body in a trunk, solved the mystery and found the murderer.

The prime minister and his retinue of seven stayed at the White House. But the other 82 members of the party were farmed out wherever hotel space could be found for them.

Mystery of Beaverbrook.

THERE has been a lot of speculation as to why Lord Beverbrook came, since he is not a member of the official party. Some said he was charged with the secret mission of patching up the rift between the Russians and the Poles.

Actually, "the Beaver" came for two "mysterious" reasons: his asthma and Averell Harriman, lend-lease representative in London. He and Harriman became great friends while on a mission to Moscow, and when Beaverbrook heard Harriman was going with Churchill to Washington, he decided to come for the ride.

Also, Beaverbrook especially wanted to visit his New York asthma specialist, Dr. Al Barach, who has been treating him for three years and who has developed a helium treatment for the ailment. "The Beaver" has found that his asthma gets worse as a result of nervousness, but that when he keeps out of critical parliamentary debates he is relatively well.

Members of the Churchill party of 90 range widely in rank, but when they got to this country, every one, from titled gentleman to servant, displayed the common touch of good appetite. On the train from seaport to Washington they all ordered two types of food which are rarities in Britain—red meat and ice cream.

Northern Tunisia Shows Marks of Battling; Bizerte Completely Wrecked By Bombs.

NORTHERN TUNISIA—(By Wireless)—A few weeks ago I wrote a column describing the winter's battleground in Tunisia, in which I said there wasn't much evidence over the countryside of the fighting that had gone on. That was the central Tunisian battlefield—the one we fought over all winter.

But now we have a new battlefield to look over, the northern one, and it looks vastly more warlike than the southern one. There are two reasons for this—the fighting was more concentrated and on a much greater scale, and the Germans collapsed so quickly they had no time to retrieve vehicles and clean up the battlefields as they did in the South.

Today there are roads in Northern Tunisia that are littered for miles at a stretch with wrecked and burned-out vehicles. Sometimes a skeleton of a tank or a big truck sits right in the middle of a road and you have to drive around it. In spots you can see two or three dozen wrecked tanks scattered across a mile-wide valley. In many places, the roads are rough from filled-in shell holes.

In the first day or two after the finish you would still see an occasional blanket-covered body lying at the roadside. Frequently you see one or two German graves, where victims of vehicle strafing are buried. And as you drive along your nose tells you now and then of one that burial parties missed.

I am constantly amazed and touched at the number of dogs and mules killed on the highways by artillery and strafing planes.

Practically all the bridges in Northern Tunisia have been blown up. You detour around the smaller ones. Over the larger streams American and British engineers have thrown up sudden and magnificent steel bridges, or laid pontoon bridges.

Only a few of the towns in Central Tunisia were really wrecked by shellfire, but in Northern Tunisia all the towns along the line of battle have been truly destroyed. Bizerte is the most completely wrecked place I have ever seen. It was a large city, and a beautiful one. It is impossible to picture in words what it looks like now.

If you remember World war pictures of such places as Verdun, that is the way it is. Nothing could possibly have lived through the months-long bombing that Bizerte took. Those who say a city can't be destroyed by bombing should come and see Bizerte.

AS SOON as the Tunisian war was over the Arabs began flocking back to their homes. They had been cleaned out of the battle area by both sides, for two reasons—to keep them from getting hurt, and because neither side trusted them.

Most of them were simply evacuated to safe hills in the rear, but those under suspicion were arrested and put in outdoor prison camps while the fighting was going on.

They come back across country now in long caravans. Scores of Arabs are in each group, with their sheep and their cattle, their burros and their kids. They are a dirty and disheartening lot.

Their junklike belongings are piled high on two-wheeled carts. I saw one cart with 14 oxen hitched to it.

The women usually have large bundles on their backs. Now and then one Arab will give you the Victory sign and say "Bon jour," but most of them pass in silence. For the Tunisian Arab was well sold by German propaganda.

FERRYVILLE and Tunis are the two places where fantastic demonstrations were put on as the Americans and British entered and released the cities from their captivity. The wild Ferryville demonstration has already been written about, but I am mentioning it again in order to tell a little story.

Chris Cunningham, of the United Press, and I shared a tent and traveled together quite a bit in this Northern campaign. Chris is a stocky fellow, with black whiskers. He looks pretty tough, although he is actually rather bashful.

When he drove in to Ferryville in his jeep he was immediately surrounded and overpowered by jubilant men, women and children, throwing flowers and shouting "Vive la France!" and "Vive l'Amerique!"

In the midst of this hubbub a pompous-looking gentleman, a gruffly dignified Frenchman of the old school, arrived on the scene. He stood for a moment at the curb, surveying the outburst with what appeared to be disapproval. Then he took a deep breath, brushed the common herd aside with both hands as though he were swimming, reached over into the jeep and kissed Chris first on one cheek and then on the other. That accomplished, he turned and strode pompously away.

Chris hasn't heard the last of it yet.

Writer Says Printers' Union Presents Model of Democracy

THE Typographical Union is hailed in an article in the June Reader's Digest as a model of democracy. Writer William Hard says that, in addition to being America's oldest union, it shows the way in the union field by holding regular elections, making regular financial reports, and requiring a three-quarters majority vote of its members before calling a strike. Unaffiliated right now with either the AFL or CIO, it has adopted a resolution saying it would like to join a reunited American labor movement, but only after democratic procedures are established in all affiliated unions.

The Digest article briefly outlines the Typographical Union's history. It was founded in Washington, D. C., in 1815. At that time the average age of printers at death was 28. Print shops were dark and dirty, the air in them was foul, the work day was 12 hours; tuberculosis was an accepted printers' ailment.

By co-operative effort, union printers and their employers pushed print shops into the forefront of early industrial sanitary progress. Nine million dollars of union funds went into the Union Printers' Home at Colorado Springs.

By 1900, printers were living to an average age of 41. By 1910, the age at death had been raised to 46; by 1920, to 53; by 1930, to 59; and by 1942, to 64.

THE DIGEST article points out that, before becoming a member of the printers' union, an apprentice must absorb the wisdom contained in 149 printed lessons sent to him by the union's bureau of education. One duty stressed in these lessons is that of attending all union meetings and voting on all union problems. Apprentices also are taught that labor should not be unfriendly to capital, because capital and labor both are essential to efficient and economical production.

Also impressed on all printers before they are accepted for union membership is that the union should insure high-class workmanship and strive to reduce unit costs; that the employers of the Typographical Union have virtually never broken a contract with the union and that no local should ever break a contract with any employer; that every local should regard itself as a partner with the employer in the production process; that every preacher of class war, every Communist, every Fascist, every Nazi, is an enemy to the union and should be eliminated from the whole American labor movement.

For these principles and for its all-out democracy, the Reader's Digest article salutes the Typographical Union as a model which other associations of American workingmen might profitably emulate.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY READ FOR MISS LUICH

Miss Olga Luich Becomes Bride of Fred Miller, Jr., In Sunday Ceremony; Nuptial Service Read By Rev. H. L. Gilbert.

IN AN IMPRESSIVE open church ceremony Sunday afternoon Miss Olga Luich, daughter of Mrs. Christine Luich, Wooster road, became the bride of Cpl. Tech. Fred Miller, jr., at the St. Paul's Lutheran church. Rev. Herman L. Gilbert read the ceremony before an altar banked with beauty baskets of white snapdragons, palms and fern.

The bride's white silk jersey gown ws fashioned with a heart shaped neckline and a soft trim of shirred jersey. Her fingertip length veil, which was fastened to a heart shaped tiara of pearls, was worn virgin style. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies.

Miss Katherine Miller, sister of the groom, ws the bride's only attendant. Her petal blue gown was made of taffeta and net and styled with a sweetheart neckline. She wore a bonnet matching her bouquet of Briarcliffe roses. The bonnet was trimmed with starched veiling of petal blue.

Mrs. Luich chose an aero blue dress and white accessories for her ensemble. Her corsage was of red rose buds. The groom's mother was attired in a tiel blue gown with brown accessories She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

Joseph Miller served as his brother's best man. The ushers were Joseph Morganstern and Peter Rabel.

Appropriate nuptial music was played during the ceremony by O. L. Seybold, organist The soloist was Miss Margaret Cumberworth who included in her program "All For You," by Brown, and "Speak To Me Of Love" by Boyer.

Following the wedding a reception was held for 150 guests at the home of groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs Fred Miller, sr, 335 Central avenue. Luncheon was served from a table decorated with lilies-of-the valley and lighted tapers. It was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a military bride and groom. The color scheme was pink, yellow and white.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to New York, the new Mrs. Miller was wearing a black tailored suit with white accessories, and a corsage of gardenias.

The bride, a graduate of Madison high school, will reside at home for the present. She is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Cpl. Tech. Miller is stationed at New Orleans, La. He was formerly employed at the county garage.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. G. B. Young and daughter, Harriet, of Shelby, Mrs Rose Luich and family, Cleveland; and Pfc. and Mrs. Frank Miller, Albuquerque, N. M.

Homemakers Will Study Dehydration At Meeting

The importance of dehydration and brining to preserve foods now for next winter's meals will be discussed at the monthly Westinghouse Health for Victory club meeting at 2 o'clock Thrsday afternoon.

"Although it sounds like a newfangled word, dehydration is one of the oldest methods of preserving foods. Years ago the job of preserving foods for winter use was quite a problem. Quick-freezing plants were unknown and canning equipment was scarce, so our pioneer homemakers dried their surplus fruits and vegetables out in the sun.

Since then dehydration, or drying, has been the subject of extensive research and it has been found that foods are more healthful when not overly-exposed to the sun. It has also been determined that vegetables taste better if they are blanched before being dehydrated.

At the Health for Victory meeting, a discussion of the latest methods of drying foods indoors will be held. The vegetables best suited for dehydration are corn, beans, peas, carrots and okra. The best fruits are apples, pears, peaches and apricots. Strawberries do not dry well but dewberries, blackberries, gooseberries and raspberries are excellent for drying.

The six steps necessary for best results will be described and demonstrated, including the proper selection of fruits and vegetables, when to dry, when and how to blanch, types of dehydrators which may be used, how much heat is required and how and where to store the dried foods.

The discussion of brining will center around two methods: dry salt and wet salt. Mrs. Julia Kiene will explain how to brine cabbage, turnips and other foods, pointing out the proper procedure and describing the necessary equipment.

"Pitfalls of Love"

By ADELE GARRISON

knew there was no use disng Katharine's dictum. So protest was a futile and a le one.

I told Mary I'd be back in ut five minutes," I said. "Bes, who's to go with me?"

That we'll soon find out," she with determination. "But , have I your word not to e here until I come back?"

You don't imagine I'm going ermit you to go into the hall, you?" I asked. "If Stephen field's dangerous for me, he's as dangerous for you."

wouldn't be so abysmally id as to attempt going out e," she said loftily. "I'm headin the other direction. Are going to stay here, or must ay on guard over you?"

gave a short little laugh at insistence. "It would be a er woman than I, Katrina, would flout you," I told her. course I give you my word. is it permitted to inquire t you're going to do?"

atharine Summons Spencer.

The only thing possible, under circumstances," she retorted, walking hurriedly through bedroom, she knocked upon camouflaged door. When my er opened it, she said in a voice "Will you please come ere a minute?" and when he stepped through it, she closed arefully after him.

Margaret!" my father ejacud as he caught sight of me ugh the door separating my oom from my sitting room. thought you were going to y's apartment."

She did start for there," Kathe said, sparing me the necesfor answer, "but Steve Red- was waiting outside, and she ght him back in here."

What!" my father almost tted. "He dared—what did he t?"

Let me tell him, Margaret," harine said, and she detailed field's conversation and my les. "But I wouldn't ,bother with such puerile stuff," she hastily, "only for the threat nade in Madge's final refusal to speak to Constance Bridgeman."

She repeated the threat, then added: — "Madge started to go over to Mary's apartment, but I kept her here. I thought she ought not to go out into the hall alone. Redfield was really in a venomous mood."

"Thank you for your good sense, Katharine," my father commended, added witheringly, "I wish I could say the same about my daughter. I will send Adams out into the hall and have him search the corridors. Then I will have him come back and escort Margaret to Mary's apartment. When Noel comes back here, let me know, and either he or I will take you over."

"The thought of having to temporize with that reptile is getting terribly on my nerves," he stated. "However, from recent developments, of which I am not yet certain enough to tell you, it looks as though the pay-off for Redfield, at least, may come very soon now."

Redfield Faces "Payoff."

I felt my pulses leaping with excitement, knew that Katharine was also thrilling to the prospect implied by his words. For the "pay-off for Redfield" would mean that the end of the long struggle was at least in sight, and this in turn would mean Marion's liberation from the gangsters who were holding her as a hostage for Jack Bickett's secret, and the lifting of the menace which was hanging over the head of Katharine's husband.

"It cannot come too soon," I told myself silently.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

ABSURDITIES FIXED, TOO

Even the absurdities, which never should occur in a bridge game among sane people, but which unfortunately do, are dealt with very sensibly and clearly in the new Laws of Contract Bridge. Time was when you could make an impossible bid of eight in your own suit, as a sacrifice, over an opponent's grand slam call, and there were also times when the laws obliged you to bid eight—when you had made an insufficient bid of seven in a suit after the opponents had bid 7-No Trumps. But those days are gone forever.

Here are the ways several such absurdities are covered in the laws:

1. If a player makes an insufficient bid of seven, the opponent at his left may allow the improper call to stand or require the offender to substitute a pass, and in either case both members of the offending side must pass thereafter whenever it is their turn to call; furthermore, if the offender's partner has the opening lead, the declarer may require or forbid the opening lead of a specified suit.

2. If a player makes a bid of eight or more, the rights of the opponents, and the penalties applying, are exactly the same as the foregoing. Such a bid, if allowed by the left-hand opponent to stand, ranks as a bid of seven, and is played as such.

3. If a player bids, doubles or redoubles, when required by some provision of the laws to pass, the foregoing also applies, as to the rights of the opponents and the penalties which apply to the case.

4. If a player should make a call which is subject to penalty under two or more different improper call sections—such as, perhaps, an insufficient bid which is also out of turn—and is therefore irregular in two or more respects, the opponent at his left may apply whichever section of the laws he sees fit to select, but may not apply both.

It might be well to point out here that the intentional committing of any irregularity, including a bid of more than seven, is improper and a violation of the proprieties of the game.

G MACHINIST NION QUITTING AFL ON JUNE 1

e Would Take 600,000 Out Federation; CIO Warns on Lewis Application.

International News Service)

ASHINGTON — Six hundred sand machinists have voted to the American Federation of r on June 1, it was learned y as the AFL considered John Lewis' application for read- on of his 540,000 United Workers.

e executive council of the national Association of Ma- ts voted unanimously to get f the AFL after a five-year roversy with the parent body a jurisdiction dispute with carpenters union.

rvey W. Brown, president of IAM called the council to- r Saturday night and imme- ly served notice on AFL Chief am Green of the union's in- on.

he union has repeatedly d the federation to take ac- in the bitter jurisdictional t with the AFL's carpenters, ded by William Hutcheson of ana, but the main labor or- zation has not done so.

e machinists have been re- d as the backbone of the and loss of the unions 600,000 bers would be a heavy blow to ederation.

ne labor observers said that , boss of the miners, may known that the machinists scheduled to take such action week when he requested re- tion with the AFL after a of eight years.

Warns AFL On is Application

SHINGTON—(U.P.)—The CIO said in an editorial today the re-entry of the United Workers into the American ation of Labor "could only most serious results for all and for our war effort."

e editorial said that if John ewis, UMW president, adds eight to that of "reaction- America First and anti- evelt leaders in the AFL" it d endanger control by the nt win-the-war majority.

e CIO is big-hearted enough able to commiserate with its ime rival on this misfortune. experience we can warn the that Lewis' embrace will not der and will leave them bad- uled if they succumb to it."

FIND SHORTAGE IN STATE FUNDS

Auditors Blame Treasurer's Employe For Account Deficit of $5,664.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson reported formally today that a shortage of $5,664.46 had been discovered in the state treasurer's office.

"Responsibility for this shortage," Ferguson said, "has been fixed by an official examination just completed. The official report names Benjamin F. Russell, an assistant cashier in the state treasurer's office, as the party responsible for the shortage."

State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, said he became aware of the shortage two weeks ago and that Russell was discharged. Russell's home is at Chesapeake in Lawrence county, he added.

The shortage, Ferguson said, piled up over a period of two years. Russell, he added, concealed abstracts of settlements "so that he would not have to account for certain remittances from counties of the state, then took remittances which were in the form of checks and converted the same into money from the cash drawer in the cashier's division of the state treasury for his own personal use."

The shortage, he said, was discovered when auditors wrote certain counties asking they make tax settlements with the state.

"When indignant replies were forthcoming that the money had been paid, an examiner became suspicious and an examination was started."

Ebright said Russell is 34 years old and married.

10 MOTORISTS ARRESTED ON TRAFFIC COUNTS

Seven Cited on Charges of Speeding; Most Deposit Bonds, Get Release.

Ten motorists were arrested over the week-end for traffic violations in the Mansfield area, state patrolmen reported today.

Seven were arrested on speeding charges, one for reckless driving, one for failure to display license plates on a house trailer, and another charged with passing a motorist without an unobstructed view.

George Thompson, Tampa, Fla., an electrician traveling to Newark, posted $10 and costs in Mansfield municipal court on a charge of failing to have a license on a house trailer. He was arrested Sunday at 3:30 p. m. on U. S. Route 42, near Mansfield.

Ralph E. Smith, 149 Park avenue east, driver for a Mansfield taxi company, was cited to appear in Mansfield municipal court Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. on a charge of passing a car on South Diamond street without an unobstructed view. Smith's car collided with a car driven by James McWilliams, Mansfield R. D. 5, after passing another car, patrolmen said.

Arrested on a charge of reckless driving on U. S. Route 42, south of Lexington, Saturday at 9 p. m., Clarence Heppner, Cleveland, transporting an army truck for Great Lakes Driveway corporation of Cleveland to a Lexington, Ky., army camp, was fined $10 and costs this morning in Mansfield municipal court.

H. L. White, Akron; Ruth H. Crowe, Cuyahoga Falls; Harry M. Gould, Columbus; Nathan Feinstein, Columbus, and Granville Sloan, Akron, signed waivers and posted bond in municipal court on speeding charges. Feinstein posted $25 because of two similar infractions. All five were arrested on U. S. Route 42.

Arthur Resnick, Canton, was fined $20 and costs in Ashland police court following his arrest for speeding on U. S. Route 42 Sunday. It was his second offense.

John Mazoue, Cleveland, paid $10 and costs in the Ashland court on charges of speeding on U. S. Route 42 Saturday.

FINAL DAY

Tomorrow Last For Payment of Garbage Service.

Although Tuesday is the last day to pay for city garbage service for the three months beginning June 1, not more than half of the bills had been paid today, according to Fred A. Lingafelter, secretary of the waterworks department.

He blamed bad weather and the busy season for the lagging payments and warned that a delinquent list will be prepared after tomorrow and service will be discontinued June 1 unless the garbage bills are paid.

GALION SCHOOL TEACHER DIES

Funeral Services For Miss Ella Louise Dapper To Be Held Tuesday.

GALION—Death claimed Miss Elsa Louise Dapper, teacher in the Galion public school system for the past 28 years Sunday afternoon at City hospital. She had been in ill health for the past six months. She suffered a heart attack shortly before noon, and was taken to the hospital where she died at 2:20 p. m.

As late as Thursdy of last week, she had performed her duties as social science teacher at the Junior high school.

City schools will be closed Tuesday afternoon.

One of the city's best loved teachers, she would have completed 28 years' of teaching this week at the close of the school year. She was also a Sunday school teacher, having taught for a number of years at Peace Lutheran church where she was a member and also sang in the choir. She was a member of the Classroom Teachers' association, and the Round Table literary club.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 3 p. m. at the Peace Lutheran church. Rev. Philip E. Auer, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be made in Fairview cemetery.

Surviving are the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Dora E. McClure, at home; Carl E. Dapper of Los Angeles, Calif.; Mrs. Flora Wrigley of New York City; Mrs. Mary Rupright of Marysville; Herman Dapper of Cleveland; and Robert Dapper of New York City.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Helen Zolman of Chillicothe, and one brother, Charles Gordon of Mansfield.

LETS CONTRACT FOR CRUISER

City Purchases Police Car on $1,168 Bid; Allows $550 For Old Vehicle.

Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff had let contracts today for a new police cruiser and 12 fire hydrants after rejecting the lone bid for the construction of 12 sewer manholes as "excessive."

The police cruiser order went to the Mohican Chevrolet company, only bidder, for $1,168. The same firm made the best offer for an old cruiser and took the car for $550.

The fire hydrant contract was awarded to the Rensselaer Valve company of Pittsburgh on its low bid of $1,356. Only other bidder was a Williamsport, Pa., firm at $1,426.

Bidder on the sewer manhole job was the R. O. Darling company, Mansfield, whose price was $2,100 for 12 manholes. Wolff said the project would be re-advertised.

The city is still marking time on the awarding of a contract for meals for inmates of the city jail. Harry Becker, East Fourth street restaurant proprietor, was the only bidder. His price was 25 cents a meal per prisoner. The city has been paying only 13 and a third cents. City prisoners are fed now at the county jail under a temporary arrangement.

Bishop Alter To Be In Mansfield For Confirmation

Bishop Karl J. Alter, bishop of the Toledo Diocese, will administer confirmation to a class of 400 at St. Peter's Catholic church Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

Services will start with the children marching into the church with Bishop Alter and priests. Seventy-five children and 325 adults wil be accepted into the church following the marching procession.

The program will close with the solemn benediction of blessed sacrament by Bishop Alter.

Twenty priests from the Mansfield vicinity will participate in the service.

RITES TUESDAY

LET CONTRACTS FOR 17 ROADS

County Commissioners Make Awards to Mansfield and Bellville Contractors.

Three Mansfield and Bellville contractors yesterday were awarded contracts totaling $35,204 for the resurfacing of sections of 17 county roads which were heavily damaged by the severe winter. The awards were made by county commissioners.

The largest contract, for $27,701, went to H. W. Fleck, Mansfield. It includes 11 roads in the southern part of the county. The roads and scheduled expenditures for their improvement are:

Millersburg west road in Springfield township, $5,200; McCurdy road, Worthington township, $1,980; Statler-Miller road, Worthington township, $625; Lexington-Springmill road, Troy township, $5,950; Courtney road, Troy township, $2,550; Hanley road, Washington and Monroe townships, $1,800; Lexington-Ontario road, Troy and Springfield townships, $2,100; Hastings-Newville road, Washington and Monroe townships, $2,500; Middle Bellville road, Washington township, $1,300; Orchard Park road, Washington township, $100; Newville-Pleasant Hill road, Worthington township, $500.

J. W. Swisher, Bellville, received a $2,505 contract for the repair of four roads along the southern edge of the county. They include the Woodberry road, Perry township, $240; Wintersteen road Perry township, $720; King's Corners road, Troy township, $345, and the Ankeny town road, Jefferson township, $1,200.

G. L. Rogers, Mansfield, was awarded a contract for resurfacing the Honeycreek road in Jefferson township for $1,428 and the Hamilton-Garber road in Worthington township for $3,570 for a total of $1,998.

The secondary roads will be treated with crushed gravel, commissioners said.

Oklahoma Righted Again, Only 3 Pearl Harbor Ships 'Lost'

(By Associated Press)

PEARL HARBOR—The battleship Oklahoma, turned almost upside down during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, has been righted after months of difficult salvage work.

Relating the full extent of operations the navy announced with pride yesterday that, of the 19 craft sunk or damaged on Dec. 7, 1941, only three vessels have been written off as lost. And more than 50 per cent salvage has been achieved even from these ships.

Righting of the Oklahoma was a matter of especial pride for Rear Admiral W. R. Furlong, commandant of the Pearl Harbor navy yard, and the yard's salvage superintendent, Commander P. H. Whitaker of Beaumont, Tex.

Ending any remaining secrecy about the Pearl Harbor losses, Admiral Furlong proudly declared the navy's success in reclaiming and modernizing most of the ships hit in the Japanese attack.

Afterward, the stocky little admiral led newsmen onto the decks of the Oklahoma, then into the captain's cabin.

"She turned over in seven or eight minutes after being hit, and you'll see some strange sights," Admiral Furlong remarked. "The damage here was caused partly by fire and water and by capsizing. Look around you."

The holds of the Oklahoma still were water-filled. A strong stench came from them, and signs warned workmen not to descend without gas masks. Below decks, the admiral said, there are the bodies of 381 officers and men.

The scene was similar on the Arizona, but she lay on the bottom, much lower in the water. Inside the Arizona the navy expects to find 1,071 bodies. Within the inverted Utah are 57 more bodies.

An official statement by Secretary of the Navy Knox of Dec. 5, 1942, named the vessels hit by the Japanese. Five battleships, the Arizona, Oklahoma, California, Nevada and West Virginia, three destroyers, the Shaw, Cassin and Downes; the mine layer Oglala, the target ship Utah, and a large floating drydock, were sunk or damaged and rendered useless at the time.

In addition, the battleships Pennsylvania, Maryland and Tennessee; the cruisers Helena, Honolulu and Raleigh; the submarine tender Curtiss and the repair ship Vestal were damaged.

"Today," Admiral Furlong said, "all of these vessels have been salvaged and have left Pearl Harbor under their own power, except the Oklahoma and Arizona and the target ship Utah, and the destroyers Cassin and Downes."

Seek Method to Obtain Vitamins From Alfalfa

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(U.P.)—Alfalfa, usually thought of as a cow food, may prove to be a new commercial source of vitamins A and D to replace fish oils, now becoming scarce because of wartime fishing restrictions, P. W. Morgal, research assistant in chemistry at Michigan State college, believes.

Morgal and E. J. Miller, research professor in agricultural chemistry at the college, discovered the vitamin possibilities while working under a grant from the Rackham foundation to determine new commercial uses for alfalfa.

Morgal said that the carotene oil which can be extracted from the leaves of dried alfalfa contained vitamin A. The alfalfa has to be dried within four hours after it is cut to retain the oil, Morgel said. While the carotene is present in most other plants, alfalfa is a good dried commercial source. By treating the oil with ultra-violet ray, the product also is enriched with vitamin D, he said.

A solvent is used to extract the carotene from the dehydrated alfalfa leaf meal. He said that from one ton of alfalfa, it would be possible to obtain vitamins A and D in an amount equivalent to 75 pounds of fish liver oil concentrate containing 10,000 units of vitamin A and 500 units of vitamin D.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—The easiest way to read this newspaper is to look at it at right angles to your line of vision, says Dr. Matthew Luckiesh, director of General Electric's lighting research laboratory here.

The practice of laying a book or newspaper flat on a table and reading it at an angle may reduce the visibility of the type as much as a third, Dr. Luckiesh points out in his new book, "Reading As a Visual Task."

Indians Beat Yankees Twice To Take Over Loop Lead

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Unless someone has some good ideas on how I can continue this bowling banquet racket, or a reasonable facsimile thereof, I fear I am going to have to feed myself all summer long, starting with now.

And if my waist line expects to be supported in the manner to which it has become accustomed then it is due for a big surprise. I don't make enough to support the paunch that has been given me practically for the free.

Honestly, I've gotten so fat, and my clothes are so tight, I look like a character out of Dickens.

Saturday night we ate chicken at the Sons of Herman until we cackled. Last night it was frog legs at the Eagles. That's all brother! That ended the free feed fiesta. Now I am working for a living again. The knife and fork league has ended its month-long season.

But it's all been very pleasant, and I will start getting in shape now to get out of shape again a year hence.

And, as I've had pointed out to me so often: Think of the ration points I saved.

Really, I didn't go to the banquets just to get a lot of free feeds.

I didn't go just for the Swiss steaks, the chicken dinners, or even the frog legs. Nor even for a second cup of coffee.

I wanted to keep my memory refreshed on what a potato looks like. It's been so long since I've been wealthy enough to look a potato in the eye, on the open market.

Hank Heiser reminds me that no other sport gives you the friendly contact with so many fine people that bowling does.

Well, that's possible.

And after partaking of their hospitality for the past month, I'll vouch for the fact that bowling has no friendlier people than the keglers of Mansfield

You may reiterate that, bub. That means: YOU CAN SAY THAT AGAIN, BROTHER!

Weill Buys Young Boxer's Contract

NEW YORK—(AP)—Manager Al Weill, who piloted Lou Ambers to the lightweight title, announced today that he had taken over another "Lou" who seems destined to win the same crown.

Weill said he had purchased the contract of Lou Hanbury, promising young lightweight who registered a major upset at Washington, D. C., Friday night, by defeating Jackie Callura of Hamilton, Ont., the National Boxing association's featherweight king.

Hanbury, 19-year-old shipyard worker of Washington, D. C., was a 3-1 underdog for the 10-round non-title bout with Callura. Weill explained that Hanbury was given little chance because it was only his 11th professional fight. But he surprised by winning the unanimous decision.

Doug Miller Buys Galion Alleys

Douglas Miller, former Mansfielder, today announced purchase of the Cline bowling alleys in Galion, and changing the name of the alleys to Miller recreation.

Miller was the Oldsmobile dealer in Mansfield for 17 years before going to Machinaw City, Mich., where he still operates the Millinac Lodge on Mackinac Straits.

BALDINGER WINS RIFLE CLUB SHOOT

J. Baldinger won the off-hand matches of the Mansfield Muzzle Loader rifle club Saturday with a percentage of 61.8 with G. Lantz and E. Smith tied for second.

Lantz took the string measure match with a string of 2.24 inches for three shots. A. Wagner had 2.80 and Baldinger 2,93.

Baldinger copped the 50 yard rest match with a 3-shot string of 1.43, and third with 2.13. Lantz was second with 1.88.

MANSFIELD DOG WINS

Red Rhythm, owned by Roger and Ryland of Mansfield, won both the tree and line events in the Crawford County Hunters association coon chase yesterday near Galion.

Yankees Have Poor Road Trip

Lose Six Out of Seven On Western Invasion.

By HUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

THE MAJOR leagues are idle today and tomorrow and the New York Yankees doubtless would be glad to use this free time to help the government discourage wartime travel.

The American league champions have just completed what was to have been a grand tour of the west and they had about as much success as a motorist with four flat tires and an "A" card.

There was strictly no pleasure in their jaunt — and very little business. Of 14 scheduled games, they were able to play only seven, because of weather conditions. Of the seven they did play they lost six. And besides losing their last four in a row, they lost the American league lead.

The heaviest blow fell yesterday at Cleveland as the Indians captured a doubleheader 3-1 and 5-2 and moved into first place by a full game.

Although the American league had been plagued by bad weather for more than a week, all clubs in both leagues managed to play yesterday and drew the biggest single day attendance of the season, 211,645.

The largest crowd was at Philadelphia, 37,176, to see the amazing Phillies divide a doubleheader with the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Phils' six-game winning streak was halted as the Pirates bagged the first game 4-1 on five-hit hurling by Rip Sewell, but the Phillies bounced right back to win the nightcap 5-2.

Brooklyn had a sellout crowd of 31,507 as the Dodgers downed the Cincinnati Reds twice, 3-0 on Ed Head's four-hit pitching and 3-1 in a game partly decided by Johnny Vander Meer's wildness. He gave nine walks in seven innings.

The St. Louis Cards humbled the New York Giants 6-5 and 4-2 before a crowd of 34,250. The two contests produced five "Polo Grounds home runs."

The day's best pitching was at Boston where the Chicago Cubs beat the Braves twice 2-1 and 1-0 in ten innings. Charley Barrett held the Cubs to three hits, although losing the opener. Hi Bithorn pitched two-hit ball to nail the nightcap.

The Washington Senators' grip on third place in the American league was enhanced by an 11-0 shutout of the Chicago White Sox in a single game. Weather forced postponement of the other half of the double bill

Detroit beat the Boston Red Sox 4-3 and then dropped the second game 3-2 in ten innings and Philadelphia and St. Louis also split. The Browns took the first 9-1 on four-hit pitching by Dennis Galehouse but the Athletics squeezed out a 3-2 win in the nightcap with Jesse Flores getting credit for his sixth victory against one defeat.

MEETS LAMOTTA

PITTSBURGH (AP) Fritzie Zivic, one-time king of the welters, returns to the fistic wars tonight when he tangles for 10 rounds with Jake Lamotta of New York in an outdoor show at Forbes field.

GOLF LOOP OPENER POSTPONED WEEK

Because of the continued wet weather, opening of the News-Journal golf league, scheduled tomorrow at Possum Run, has been postponed until the following Tuesday, Secretary Carl Wiseman announced today.

The league will open with the schedule for the second week of play, and tomorrow's original schedule of matches will be tacked on the end of the season.

Legion And Supplies Win

Ten Yuncker Misplays Lose 1-Run Decision.

American Legion nine took advantage of 10 Yuncker errors yesterday to edge out and 8 to 7 victory over the Sports in one of the two opening games of the Mansfield Commercial baseball loop at the Fairground.

After staging a five-run outburst in the eighth inning to take a 7 to 4 lead, Yunckers tossed the game away in the last frame by committing three errors which allowed the Legion to chalk up four runs.

Dave Miller, Yunckers' hurler, struck out 14 batters and allowed six hits. He allowed only one earned run.

Athletic Supplies ran wild over East Side Merchants in the other league opener 20-4, with the East Enders scoring all their runs in the eighth inning at Liberty park.

Jack Elliot and Jack Hammett, county high school athletic stars, did the hurling for the Athletics, limiting the losers to five hits.

Supplies tallied in every inning but the sixth, and wound up the carnage with seven in the ninth.

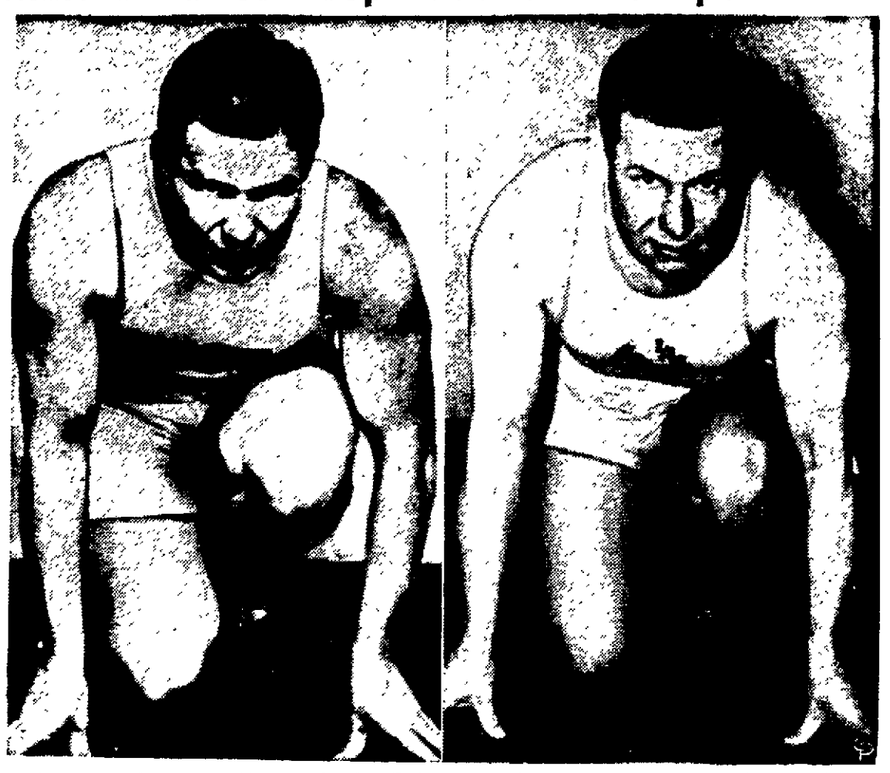
Marine Duties Keep Paddock In Shape



The years have been kind to Charley Paddock, one-time ace American track star. At left is a picture of Charley taken in April, 1923, showing him in the track suit of the United States Olympic team. At right is a photo taken a few days ago in San Francisco. Paddock is now a captain in the United States Marine Corps. This is an official United States Marine Corps photograph.

Dye Coaches Champion Club

Leaves For Navy With Bucks In First Place.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— "Tippy" Dye prepared today to leave for his navy training at Chapel Hill, N. C., with the Ohio State University baseball team he has coached this season, assured of at least a tie for the Western Conference championship.

The Buckeyes defeated Chicago, 16 to 6, Saturday for their fourth win in five conference starts. With only two games with Purdue left on the schedule, the Bucks need only a win to assure them of the second Western conference baseball championship in the history of the school.

* * *

Wisconsin is in second place in the conference standings with five victories against three losses and must win both of its two remaining games to have a chance of overcoming Ohio State.

Freshman Coach Fritz Mackey is taking over Dye's duties as varsity baseball mentor.

Sees Golf Game Deteriorating

MEMPHIS, Tenn. —(AP)— Byron Nelson, blond wizard of the shafts, thinks tournament golf will deteriorate eight to ten strokes during the wartime layoff.

"Where it took between 278 and 282 strokes to win a major 72-hole event in the barnstorming days," the Toledo shotmaster opined, "a score of 288 or 290 probably will do the job after the big fight."

The young veteran, winner of every major professional golf title in the United States, was in Memphis yesterday to play an exhibition with Bing Crosby and Ed Dudley.

Nelson said he didn't know how long it might take the leading pros to resharpen their game to pre-war keenness but declared "If it takes more than six months a lot of new names are going to be in the headlines."

HILBORN-WILLIAMS LOSE ALLEY MATCH

Art Hilborn and Art Williams, Wadsworth bowling alley proprietor, yesterday lost their $100 match with Steve Toth and Ray Smth of Columbus by 150 pins.

Hilborn and his partner were behind by 206 pins when they completed the 10-game first half of the match at the Colony alleys yesterday afternoon, but cut down the margin in the next 10 games at Columbus last night.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— The order cutting gasoline rations for buses 40 per cent in the east may be the finishing wallop for a lot of sports that hoped to get by this summer because they had bus transportation . . . Golf courses likely will feel it the most. But the garden state race track, many minor league baseball parks and even the AAU track championships were depending upon buses . . . The major baseball parks, hoss tracks and boxing emporiums likely won't be affected . . . Another peculiar situation is that athletes —even sandlotters — who play for pay can use their cars to drive to work but the customers have to find some other way to get there.

MONDAY MATINEE

When the Jacobs Beachcombers heard that the new lightweight champion, Bob Montgomery, expected to go back to work today as a blacksmith's helper in a Chester, Pa., shipyard, there was a terrific rush to get there first and sign up the blacksmith . . . Tulane, one of the few southeastern colleges that skipped spring football practice, reports one of the most successful baseball seasons on record. The team was coached by little Monk Simons, who usually is busy with other duties during the baseball season.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Tommy Tucker, Cleveland News —"Manager Joe Cronin is unhappy about his Red Sox The team lost so many stars since last season, it is now rated one of the weakest in the league. But I have little sympathy for any club in that situation. If the Red Sox hadn't had Williams, DiMaggio and other such stars in the first place, they wouldn't have suffered such a drop in power . . . The Indians, for instance, they were smarter."

Crowds Fall At AA Parks

Need Good Weather To Revive Interest.

(By Associated Press)

Officials of the American Association concurred today that several weeks of good weather were needed to win back public interest which apparently has waned after a string of postponed games.

In four doubleheaders yesterday, only an average of some 2,400 fans attended each game—ranging from a low of 998 at Louisville (smallest Sunday crowd in that city's history) to a high of 3,118 at Columbus.

Indianapolis was one of three clubs to make a twinkling yesterday, nicking St. Paul 6 to 1 and 11 to 4.

Milwaukee brushed aside Columbus 8 to 2 and 9 to 1.

Toledo measured Kansas City 5-4 and 4-2.

Louisville lost 4-2 to Minneapolis but bounced back to take the nightcap 8-1.

Lou Isn't Sure He'll Save Cubs

CHICAGO—(INS)—Lou Novikoff, with unaccustomed modesty, conceded today he was not sure he could pull the Chicago Cubs out of the National league cellar singlehanded.

"I'll try," he said, "but eight other fellows have to do something."

Lou, the record holdout for the 1943 season, arrived in Chicago yesterday after his salary demands, apparently, had been satisfied in a parley with Clarence Rowland, the Cubs' Los Angeles representative.

As Montgomery Won Title

Bob Montgomery, rangy Philadelphia fighter, surprised the entire fistic world by dethroning Lightweight Champion Beau Jack in a slashing 15-round scrap in New York's Madison Square Garden. It was Beau Jack's first defense of his title. Montgomery is shown, above, ducking low as Beau Jack tosses a round-house right over his head in a late round of the fight.

Southpaws Smith and Dean Halt Bombers

Ex-Mansfielder Hank Edwards Starts Winning Rally In Opener.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Victors over the New York Yankees in a double-header, the Cleveland Indians were tops today in the American league by the margin of one full game over their Bronx rivals.

Manager Lou Boudreau threw a pair of southpaw servers at the made-over visitors—Al Smith and Chubby Dean—and both won their third games of the season before a crowd of 30,000—3 to 1 and 5 to 2. Smith held the Yanks to five hits in the opener as Yankee flinger Tiny Bonham weakened enough in the third frame for the Redskins to collect three runs on five hits—all the bingles they got in that performance.

The plugging Tribesmen made it a perfect week end against the Yankees by fashioning the double victory after Saturday night's 16-hit win over the Bronxers. The first game progressed this way:

The Redskins didn't score in any inning but the third but singles by Hank Edwards, Ken Keltner, Jeff Heath, Buddy Rosar and Ray Mack which brought home Rosar, Mack and Edwards gave the Indians a comfortable lead to coast on behind Smith's hit-scattering pitching. The Tribe got all their hits in the third frame, the Yankees' lone tally coming in the second inning on Joe Gordon's double and Johnny Lindell's single.

In the nightcap Spurgeon Chandler held the league leaders hitless until the sixth inning when singles by Boudreau, Keltner and Roy Cullenbine chased Chandler from the box, Cleveland scoring four runs with the aid of Gordon's error on a cinch double-play ball hit by Edwards.

The Yankees scored one run in the first inning on Tucker Stainback's double and Charlie Keller's single and added another in the sixth on a walk by Gordon and Nick Etten's single to left field.

Cleveland made another run in the 8th stanza on Cullenbine's double and Otto Denning's single, making the final score 5 to 2 and putting the Indians one full game in first place.

The Indians have open dates today and tomorrow and then catch the train tomorrow night for Boston where they open their first eastern series this year.

LOSE ON SUNDAY

CINCINNATI —(AP)— No member of the Cincinnati Reds baseball team seeks the enactment of a Sunday blue law but the Queen City fans admit it might be a good idea.

The reason? In four successive Sabbath day double headers the Reds have come out on the short end of the score.

They fell victim to the Sunday double-dealing of the St. Louis Cardinals, the Chicago Cubs, the Boston Braves and the Brooklyn Dodgers, in that order.

Latest catastrophe to overtake the Cincinnati boys was the double humiliation handed them yesterday by the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers.

Before 31,507 cash customers, Lipp Durocher's Bums rode herd over the Reds by scores of 3 to 0 and 3 to 1.

The Dodgers clinched the opener off Ray Starr in the first two heats, bunching four of their seven hits, with two walks to score their three tallies. They went on from there behind the brilliant four-hit pitching of young Ed Head who permitted only one Red to see third base.

Cincinnati drew first blood off Whitlow Wyatt in the second contest, to score one run—their only one for the day. The Brooks tied the count in the fourth on two walks issued by Johnny Vander Meer and a single by Dee Moore.

In the seventh inning, singles by Arkie Vaughan, Joe Medwick and Billy Herman broke the deadlock, and Brooklyn scored again in the eighth.

Enroute to Cincinnati the Reds stop at Rochester today for a twilight exhibition with Pepper Martin's Red Wings. They open their home stand Wednesday with a night game against the surprising Philadelphia Phillies. Bucky Walters is scheduled to handle the pitching chores.

Bid For NBA Title Fight

Angott-Armstrong Bout Being Lined Up.

CHICAGO —(INS)— If the promoters can get Henry Armstrong's name on the customary line, there will be an anti-New York lightweight championship fight, with the benediction of the N. B. A., between Armstrong and Sammy Angott in the Cleveland municipal stadium on the night of June 13.

This much was practically settled last night in a Chicago north side apartment where the Cleveland promoters met with Charley Jones, Angott's manager.

The Cleveland promoters said they'd give Angott $20,000. They also said, gratuitously, that they'd give him the first $10,000 of this within 48 hours. Jones very hurriedly said yes.

His fighter relinquished the title for a few months after he'd been both New York and N. B. A. champion, then as mysteriously came back to give Featherweight Champion Willie Pep a slathering. He's apparently permanently back.

Beau Jack succeeded Angott, in the pompous reckoning of the New York commission, because he'd knocked over a couple of fistic duck pins. But all he had left was his intellect at a late hour last Friday after meeting Bob Montgomery whom Angott has licked three times out of three.

As for Armstrong, the ex-champion, he did 138½ for a recent over-the-limit fight with Jack and says he can make the weight.

* * *

These maneuvers represent an attempt to set up at least a "nuisance value" bloc against Marmaduke Jacobs, nee Mike, which is all very interesting. But not so much so as the fact that boxing men now are coming to Chicago—which had the all-time biggest gate, $2,600,000—in order to make matches for Cleveland.

AN APPLE FOR EVE --

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER XVI

The fearful significance of the great guns that rumbled overseas was slow to reach the little factory settlement outside of Bakersfield. Loveday Ingersoll worked steadily through the heavy floods of winter and the burning dry heats of summer with small interest for any problems that did not touch her own kitchen and nursery and pocket. Like the women in the neighborhood shanties and cottages and parked trailers, she listened to the rumors and read the headlines in the papers; she knew when Poland fell, when Holland fell, when men were piling into boats on the beach at Dunkirk.

Without a maid, without a car, without a radio, there was little to open her eyes to the world tragedy. All through the dreadful week when Coventry was laid low her babies were feverish and crying with measles; England's tragedy was only a distant shadow on her life.

But the shadow deepened. Older mothers talked to her of the draft, the young men who might be called, the menace that had reached out hands across the ocean to draw the boys away. Larry reminded her restlessly more than once of his three months' training in aviation in Pensacola.

"I could get in again. I'll bet you they'd take me."

"I'll bet you" — she might straighten her body over the tin washtub, press a hand against the aching spot at the base of her spine, wipe soapy water from swollen fingers with her apron—"I'll bet you they'd do nothing of the kind. You with three children! This isn't our war."

"I could enlist without being called," he once said sulkily, but Loveday was too angry to make any reply.

"A woman isn't born until she's married," Loveday Ingersoll remarked to her sister-in-law, Marge Zack, one day. All three of Larry's sisters were married now, but Marge, the oldest, had been the last bride and was still interested in delicate generalities as to the wedded state.

"Well, in a way that's right," Marge said. She reached a well-groomed, red-nailed hand for another cooky, and Loveday put a piece of rusk down on the tray of the baby's chair, shallow puddles outside, the smells of coal fire and dishwater and yellow soap and baby cribs and souring food.

Do what she would she could not keep up with it, of course. A very small sum of money would have made it much easier—a washing machine, a gas stove, a telephone. But that sum of money was missing. Loveday still got her allowance of fifty dollars a month; often in these busy four years that had been all she had had to spend.

The twins had arrived impromptu at the Ingersoll house in town upon an occasion when Loveday and Larry had gone to his mother for a family dinner just before Betty-Lou's wedding. This Loveday considered a great piece of luck; she could not be moved for ten days, and they were ten days of unexpected rest and luxury for her. Larry's mother, who had more than once expressed sharp disapproval of the procedure of having a baby at all, under the circumstances, had been more or less forced into the role of nurse and had sustained it with great spirit.

Later when Loveday, Larry, the big baby boy, and the two ecstatically happy small girls had found themselves back in the Buckingham Way cottage, rejoicing so heartily in the reunion that details like a hospital bill for more than one hundred dollars and the general disintegration of the house that had stood empty for three months bothered them not at all.

And then Larry quit his job. It was for the usual good reasons, but good reasons did not pay the milk bill or buy cotton for baby rompers. There was an interval of illness and discouragement, and then he got another job in a branch agency.

The parent firm, however, in Bayonne, New Jersey, suddenly went into liquidation, and Larry was unemployed again. Loveday put her pride in her pocket and wrote to Warren St. George for advice. He had written her shortly after her marriage that, owing to the fortunate handling of her small estate, he could continue the monthly allowance longer than they had at first thought, and it had gone on without interruption. Her suggestion to enlarge it to seventy-five dollars a month until the bills were paid he thought was sound, and he and Aunt Laura were adding a hundred this particular month on their own account, always regarding Loveday as one of their children and always affectionately hers.

The spirit of the letter did as much for her as had the miraculous comfort of paying bills.

But when months went by and Larry obtained no regular work she would not write the St. Georges. She had sensed in their last brief letter that her silence about her own problems had pleased them, had made them respect her. She would not jeopardize that respect again. There was no false pride in that. She had no real claim upon them.

She was genuinely grateful now when her queer old father-in-law took the factory bus to come out to see her and brought with him a sack of beans of his own picking. When Marge or Alma or Betty Lou called and contributed a pound of butter or a marble cake Loveday never made any pretense that it was not welcome. In the fall, when the orchards all about were heaped with fruit that did not pay for the gathering, Loveday quite unashamedly took her small girls and a basket and went to collect her winter supply of apples and prunes. She never talked either of money or poverty with the neighboring women, or indeed with anyone, but thrift, down to the last spoonful of stew or the staled crust of bread, was forever in her mind. Under the great oak she had fenced off a little vegetable garden; she grew her own tomatoes and cabbage and corn, saw most of them blasted and destroyed by the sun because she could not afford to water them, and hoarded whatever was left without surprise or complaint.

But she had plans and she impressed them enthusiastically upon Larry whenever he grew despondent. Friends Haven would sell, and they would have a dazzling sum of money, enough to buy a darling house somewhere with two bathrooms and a patio, enough to buy the neighboring house, too, and rent it, and thus be sure of an income for life. And if there was enough left they would buy an automobile agency for Larry.

"If we bought that first, Love, I'd make enough to buy the rest."

"No, no, the home first." Sometimes when, as today, the relentless rain beat upon the house and the level fields were spotted with pools, or in the burning summer when the ice cart was late and the milk bottles, even when standing up to their necks in a pail of water, were not cold enough to keep their contents sweet, Loveday mentally moved into the shady little cool house on a hill, with the fountain in its patio tinkling and the gas stove in its kitchen spotlessly white, and lived there for a while.

"What's Larry doing today?" Marge asked one day. Loveday who had been dreaming over the string beans, looked up and answered briskly:

"Well, he has a plot today. There's a man in Merced who was talking about some job, and Jim Unger had to go to Merced today, so Larry went along to see this man."

"What sort of a job?"

"Foreman on a ranch up Gerberway. It sounds possible. A hundred a month, and you get a house and eggs and milk—all that."

"But Larry doesn't know a thing about ranching."

"No, but when you consider the men who do, you feel that he might pick it up easily." Loveday would not be discouraged. "The trouble here is," she went on hesitantly, "that Larry really wants to stand well with the community; he wants to make us proud of him. But whatever he tries just seems to fizzle out. So I feel—" Loveday stopped short and her face brightened into a smile as a small girl of three shyly opened the sitting-room door and stood there in rumpled faded little pajamas, with sleep-reddened cheeks and tousled gold hair.

"Mommy—" she began uncertainly.

"Yes, you can get up, darling, and Betsy too;" Loveday reassured her. The small girl came over and leaned against her, still heavy with sleep, but according her aunt a shy smile. The baby broke into a vociferous jabbered welcome, and another small girl, the indistinguishable double of the first, also emerged from the sitting room and went to push her own tumbled curls against her mother's other arm.

"A man is comin' to our house," said Betsy.

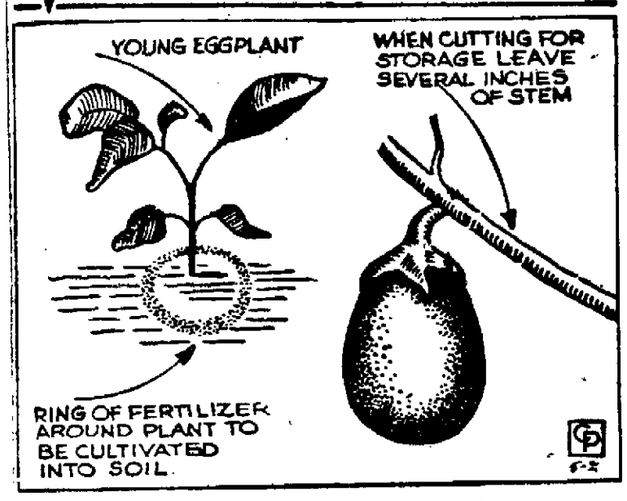
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



YOUNG EGGPLANT
WHEN CUTTING FOR STORAGE LEAVE SEVERAL INCHES OF STEM
RING OF FERTILIZER AROUND PLANT TO BE CULTIVATED INTO SOIL

Eggplant for Variety In the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Eggplant will be included in many Victory gardens this year, for when properly cooked, it becomes a good meat substitute. Eggplant is a long season tender crop and should be given the warmest spot in the garden.

Most gardeners purchase the plants in preference to growing eggplants from seed. As a rule, plants about six inches tall are set out into the garden. Eggplant will withstand transplanting better if the young plants are given a thorough soaking in water the night before planting. They resent any disturbance of their roots.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, place a small handful of fertilizer in a circle around each plant as they are set out and cultivate it in lightly. Later, if growth appears slow, repeat the application of fertilizer.

When the plants are about half grown a two or three-inch mulch placed around them will help to conserve the moisture in the soil and keep the roots in a healthy growing condition.

Eggplants can be stored for a considerable period of time in a cool, moist cellar, therefore a few extra plants should be set out at planting time. When the fruits are cut for storage several inches of the stem should be left attached to each fruit, as illustrated.

Always handle eggplants as though they actually were eggs, for the fruit is tender and bruises easily.

ENROLL NEGRO

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Lucille Stransberry is the first negro woman to be enrolled here as a WAAC. She was sworn in by another negro WAAC from the Los Angeles office. Lt. Harriette B. White, with two other negro WAACS as witness. The new WAAC formerly had been employed as chief inspector of the Pacific Parachute Co., which was financed by Rochester, Jack Benny's negro comic.

RATION SIDEWALK SPACE

EDENTON, N. C.—(U.P.)—With other things, sidewalk space has been rationed here to help shoppers and pedestrians. The street department has painted lines on sidewalks of the business section dividing the space for shoppers going in and out of stores and pedestrians who keep moving. The other portion is for the folks who come to town "just to talk."

LEGAL NOTICE

To:
The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company; Philip Warga; Robert Sturges Kuhn; The Pennsylvania Railroad Company; The Pittsburgh Ft. Wayne and Chicago Railway Company, you are hereby notified that on the 13th day of May, 1943, the Council of the City of Mansfield, State of Ohio, duly passed Resolution No. 43-60 declaring it necessary to improve East Fifth Street from Main Street to the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks by making the necessary foundation repairs, widening, grading, curbing, draining and resurfacing with asphalt or other suitable materials in accordance with the plans, profiles, specifications and estimates on file in the office of the department of Public Service, and that the grade of the street shall be the established grade.

That the cost and expense of said improvement will be assessed by the foot front upon the lots and lands bounding and abutting the proposed improvement.

By order of the Council of the City of Mansfield.

Attest: R. R. BLACK, Clerk.
(May 24-31, N-J. '43)

POSITIVELY

The last week for you to buy these FHA lots at these low prices! Do you know what it means to own an FHA approved Title 6 lot? It means your lot makes the down payment on your home; it means while the owner of other lots is having his lot approved, you build and occupy your own home. No rent paid . . . no delay . . . no expense . . . no embarrassment. Buy now! Small down payment will hold it; your lot will double in value as the first payment on your home.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

STOCKHOLM—(By Wireless)—Looking out this window to the east, one sees another appalling example of how the Nazis miss their opportunities. This is in connection with their occupation of the three Baltic states—Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

When the Germans drove the Russians out of these countries the people hailed the Nazis as liberators. That lasted about a month. The conduct of the Germans quickly chilled the population, and provided another example of the remarkable gift of the Nazis for making themselves the most hated people in Europe.

Clapper

The Russians had treated the Baltic peoples badly. The Germans took up where the Russians had left off. They didn't give back the property taken away by the Russians. Soon the people began saying the Nazis were just Russians in another uniform. They called the Nazi officials "brown commissars."

There seems to have been even less excuse for the Germans alienating these peoples than some of the others, since they put the administration of the Baltic states under Alfred Rosenberg, who, though an original Nazi, was born in Estonia.

The Russians had instituted a brutal regime when they got into the Baltic states soon after the outbreak of the war in Europe. They took over industries, making the former owners their temporary managers. There were heavy deportations. For instance, Estonia, having a population of 1,100,000, had 50,000 deported. And that phase had just begun. Then the Germans moved in. The Russians' conduct in the Baltic states was used by the Swedes as an example of how Russia would behave if she became a permanent neighbor. Thus Swedish fears were aggravated and Swedish sympathies for Finland strengthened. Why won't nations learn that they do not get lasting results by pushing people around?

The Nazis were aware of the effect the Russian treatment of the Baltic peoples had had in Sweden. Yet when the Nazis drove the Russians out in the summer of 1941 they repeated the same blunders.

The Germans held onto property that the Russians had confiscated, on the theory that it belonged to the German state after its capture from the Russian state. Instead of restoring it to the original owners, the Germans are distributing the property to their own people as a means of establishing complete economic control. They have taken over textile factories, 32 distilling and alcohol plants, the entire tobacco industry, electrical utilities, movies, dairies, co-operatives—in short, the main industries. The Jews were driven out. It was rather bad treatment all around, with heavy labor drafts. Estonia is regarded as the closest to Germany among the Baltic states, so the Nazis have granted the Estonians the right to intermarry with German citizens.

Here again it is the story of Holland and Norway and all the other occupied countries except Denmark, which—in spite of the Nazi effort to make the Danes into model teachers' pets, allowing them more meat than the Germans get—has increasing sabotage and ever more grudging cooperation.

Only Finland seems to be a willing captive. The Finnish people are friendly enough to us, but so long as we are on the same side as Russia there is not much chance that the Finns will break away from Germany to help us. One wing of the Finnish labor party has been arguing that Germany is losing the war and that Finland should change her policy, but the premier's latest statement ends that agitation, while the political police, heeded by an imitation of the Nazi Himmler, probably will continue intimidating friends of the Allies.

Arguments evidently are futile with the Finnish authorities, who are putting all their chips on Germany.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

LOS ANGELES—While I am on the subject of the movies and films which are either openly pro-Communist or accomplish this effect by disparagement of American institutions and ways, I might as well give you a report on another new picture done by Warner Brothers, the same who turned out the version of Joseph Davies' "Mission to Moscow." This one is about the heroic service of the civilian sailors of the merchant marine and a very fine picture, too, but a stupendous plug for the maritime union which is a strict party-line organization.

Pegler

There are other unions of seafarers but the action takes place in New York and on the run to Murmansk and the national maritime union runs things in that area. That being the case I think it is only fair to grant that realism justifies the identification of the union and the footage shot in the union's hiring hall.

But the propaganda lies in negative effects which is to say in omissions for, inasmuch as writers were going in for realism, they could have been realistic, too, about the contrast between the pay of the enlisted naval gunners of the armed guard and that of the civilian sailors, with their bonuses and overtime for exactly the same risks.

They might have been expected to show a union meeting on board and a delegation calling on the skipper with demands backed by an organization which picketed the White House against American aid to Britain before Hitler attacked Russia. There is not a hint of any such things except one mention, consisting of perhaps half a dozen words, on the subject of the merchant sailors' bonus money, nor is there any recognition of class feeling against the young naval lieutenant in command of the armed guard.

When the enlisted sailors first come aboard with their bags there is a little merrymaking at their expense because of their youth and inexperience of the sea but it passes off in pleasant temper and later on the lieutenant orders some of the civilian sailors to understudy his men and learn the rudiments of gunnery in case of need, wherein, I believe, he exceeded his authority for union men, even at sea, retain their civilian independence. However, the union men do fall to and learn their lessons and I think that probably is realistic, too, for, after all, by no means all of the members joined the union because they wanted to and it does not follow, either that a man follows the communist line because his union does.

Moreover, this union is now trying to eliminate the navy from the merchant ships of the American people and take over the guns itself. As long as the navy is aboard the guns are in charge of an element of men of sworn patriotism to the United States and to no other nation.

I believe and insist that the realities of unionism at sea and the character of this union and its history of adherence to the Communist party of the U. S. A. which our department of justice had identified as an organization hostile to this government deserved recognition in any film purporting to give a factual picture of the situation. You will find nothing of the kind in this one but, you get a very nice impression of the national maritime union quite contrary to the impression that would be made on you by perusal of its official publication, The Pilot, of which I am a constant reader. No communism is preached at the American naval sailors at any time, there is no discussion of the disparity in pay for equal risk and hardship and the union sailors appear willing to do anything that needs doing at any time without any mention of overtime pay which might disquiet some of the people at home whose sons are serving the guns on the same vessels for straight navy pay.

I would settle for very little corrective footage in this propaganda film but that little would be very effective and would undeceive the public as to the character of the organization which here appears to be utterly American. I would settle for a few flashes of page one of The Pilot between Hitler's opening attack on Poland, his unwise march against Russia, flashes showing the pickets in New York and Washington and the opposition to the draft and every other American preparation for war and the denunciation of all who favored and voted for such measures as warmongers. If in the interests of realism and truth, Warners want to insert this enlightening material the Dies committee, I am sure, would be glad to give it to them free.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

AMONG the stock characters in the nocturnal drama who have not escaped the attention of tunesmiths and playwrights and hacks are the lassies behind the trays. The girls who slither through the smoke-filled places laden with cigars, cigarets and small souvenirs have been prominently involved (in prototype of course) in the plots of motion pictures and stage melodramas. Fiction tales have taken inspiration from the sisterhood of smoke-suppliers. Songs, too. Songs like the poignant "Cigarets—Cigars" which Ruth Etting introduced in the Ziegfeld Follies in 1931.

Kilgallen

If you know them, cigaret girls are like girls anywhere. They like this and they don't like that, they're in love, they're out of love, they're full of ambitions—all different, of course. Their hours and salaries are about the same, and they all agree about what to do on the job they believe, unanimously, that it's important to look ornamental and to look the other way when some suddenly smitten chap starts to act sentimental. But there the resemblance of one tray-toter to another ends.

Take the girl who is one of the most beautiful of the clan—Madeline Grady of the Coq Rouge. Madeline has shoulder-length tresses the color of blue-black ink great luminous dark eyes olive skin and teeth that are dazzling white and so even they look as if they had been drawn in with a carefully measured ruler. She is so pretty that whenever James Montgomery Flagg buys a pack of his favorites he asks her when she is going to quit her job and come to work for him as a model. Madeline always smiles, says little, and does nothing about it. The answer is, she isn't.

Madeline is one cigaret girl who didn't take that job because it might land her a job in the movies or on the stage or in the magazine illustrations. This is her first fling at tobacco-vending; she got the post as a present to herself on her 21st birthday, because she was tired of the glamor game—a game she'd been playing ever since she won a Beautiful Child contest at the age of five. Madeline has been a Thornton model, and as Louise Michaels she decorated the stage in "Hold Onto Your Hats" and "Too Many Girls."

She was briefly and unhappily married at the age of 18 and has a two-year-old son. She loves to cook, dislikes furs, but appreciates nice jewelry; and she is one of the best bowlers ever to elicit "bravas" from the boys at the Roxy alley. She tells you she isn't interested in romance . . . but it seems there is a fellow named Capt. Steve Montgomery in the RAF.

And Madeline wears a pair of silver wings.

Patricia Miles, the Circe of the ciggies at El Morocco, is blond and baby-voiced, and one of the best-known cigaret girls in New York. Her picture has adorned the cover of Cosmopolitan, she has won beauty contests and she is determined to become a screen siren. The way she puts it is "I'll get to Hollywood—definitely—wait and see—I'll get there even if I have to FLY." This little lady and Madeline Grady are definitely not sisters under the skin.

PLEDGES ARMY WON'T MOVE IN ON FARM AREAS

Patterson Gives Promise, Says Congressman Investigating Manpower Problems.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson has given his assurance that the army will not send "military farmers" to work in the agricultural areas, it was disclosed today by Rep. Martin (R.), Iowa.

At the same time, Martin, a member of the house military affairs committee, said he had warned War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt of the "critical labor shortage" existing in the farm belt as planting time approaches and asked "what is being done?"

McNutt replied only that "he had given it some thought," Martin asserted.

An outspoken critic of the war department's plan to send military organizations into farm regions to work the fields, Martin said he had "challenged" Patterson on the soundness of such a policy.

"Patterson has assured me however, that such a move would not be resorted to except in case of extreme emergencies, such as floods and disasters," Martin said.

The Iowa congressman said he was convinced that agricultural functions of military men on the farm would not be "an efficient use of manpower."

He said further that procedure for securing army discharges for farm workers drafted into service is a "slow process at best" in view of the emergency needs in the farm regions.

"It is the desire of most army officers, however, to cooperate with the food production program wherever possible," Martin added. "But the army will not discharge men who have had intensive or specialized training and whose services are needed in the war program."

"Within the last few weeks, discharge procedures have been decentralized, with final authority for a man's release left to the commanding general in the field," he said.

KNOX LOOKS TO CONFLICT'S END

Warns of Danger To Society Disorderly Demobilization Would Involve.

(By United Press)

BETHANY, W. Va.—A disorderly demobilization of American fighting men after the war "may well be a devastating shock to our society" and result in the loss of "the very democratic principles for which we fight," Secretary of Navy Frank Knox said here.

"When the war is over and the victory is won there will be a loud clamor to 'send the boys home'," Knox said at the 102nd commencement exercises at Bethany college yesterday.

"If the demobilization is disorderly it may well be a devastating shock to our society," he said. "Millions of young men will have to be absorbed in industry, business, agriculture and education. I hope and pray the opportunities will be there and that we will contrive an orderly demobilization.

"The problem demands our best thinking and planning, lest through chaotic demobilization we lose the very democratic principles for which we fight."

Knox said that 400 schools and colleges have arranged with the navy to train 80,000 students simultaneously and for definite schedules of mobilization.

Pointing out that education at the college level today "can only be justified now insofar as the young man or women is prepared thereby for war," the secretary urged educators to plan now to make higher education available to the masses after the war.

Up and Down THE STREET

A number of Mansfield canoeists are planning to join a canoe flotilla down the Mohican river from Loudonville to the Mohawk dam below Brinkhaven over the week-end of June 5. Providing their own canoes, food and equipment, the travelers will spend Saturday night at Camp Nelson Dodd near Brinkhaven and return to Loudonville Sunday night. The Mansfield delegation probably will be headed by Mayor W. J. Locke who said he plans to make the water journey.

Can you imagine being fined for driving a horse over a bridge at a pace faster than a walk? Well, it did happen back in 1869. Ray Hout, county commissioner, in going through some old papers in his grandfather's desk, found a receipt for $6, fine for driving too fast. The lawbreaker was apprehended when he charged across the Hostetter bridge in Mifflin township, October, 1868. But if travel was slow in those days so were the wheels of justice. The receipt was dated March, 1869.

No outing was complete without the companionship of "King," who made friendships quickly and became known to thousands of Mansfield children as well as adults. "King" was one of the sort of dogs that lived up to requirements for being designated as "man's best friend."

'GAS' REVENUE FALLS SHARPLY

State To Collect 12 Million Less For Highway and Street Purposes.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A slump in revenue from the three-cent gasoline tax during the first four months of 1943 indicated today there would be approximately $12,000,000 less available for street and highway purposes this year than last, a state highway department survey reported.

The tax yield was only $10,184,000 up to May 1 of this year, as compared with $13,189,000 in the corresponding 1942 period, the survey showed.

If this ratio prevails throughout 1943, income from the tax would total $29,225,000 against $37,539,000 in 1942. An anticipated further drop in automobile use with the resulting decline in the three-cent motor vehicle fuel tax yield would bring the estimated net income to between $23,000,000 and $25,000,000, the survey added.

Income from this levy for street and highway use is divided thus: state system highways, 56¼ per cent; counties, 16¾ per cent; townships, 8¾ per cent, and cities, 18¾ per cent.

END OF SESSION BY FRIDAY, AIM OF LEGISLATURE

Starts 21st Week With Several Pieces of 'Must' Business To Be Disposed of.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Hoping to make Friday its last working day, the Ohio legislature tonight begins its 21st week of its 95th session with several pieces of "must" legislation remaining to be enacted.

Three school bills, the $368,000,000 general appropriations bill, the sundry claims bill, and the bill to provide for the payment of additional unemployment insurance premiums by war-expanded industries must be agreed upon before the solons can go home. If that program takes them beyond Friday, as some senate leaders say it will, the session will have to be extended.

In addition, Sen. Stanley Mechem (R-Nelsonville) will have his last chance of introducing his "daylight savings" time bill, which would give Ohio "fast" or Eastern War Time until Oct. 1, with "slow" or Central War Time from then until next April 1.

"It looks like the sensible thing to do," Senator Mechem said, "but I intend to talk to the governor about it."

The legislature early in the session enacted "slow" time for Ohio as an aid to the farmers, but the cities have failed to go along.

The house judiciary committee was to meet this afternoon for what it hoped would be its final hearing on the Whittemore bill, to provide for a surtax in addition to the regular unemployment insurance premium to be paid by war industries that have expanded more than 50 per cent. The surtax is designed to provide an additional $8,000,000 or so annually to build up a cushion against post-war unemployment.

Tomorrow, the house education committee will meet to take final action on a bill providing a $1,500,000 fund for the rehabilitation of weak school districts and the payment of back salaries to teachers.

House and senate are agreed upon the amount of the fund, but differ as to its distribution. The senate passed the bill leaving the distribution discretionary with the education department; the house would allocate it according to a strict formula.

ILL 3 MONTHS

Harry C. Shields, 54, Taken By Death at Home Sunday.

Harry C. Shields, 54, Trimble road, died Sunday at Mansfield General hospital following an illness of three months.

Born Aug. 21, 1889, in Perry county, Pa., Mr. Shields came to Mansfield 40 years ago. He was employed by the Tappan Stove company.

He is survived by his widow, Cora; two sons, Paul E. with the United States army at Patterson Field, Colorado Springs, Co., and George W., Mansfield; one daughter, Mrs. Lillian Hill, Mansfield; two brothers, Eugene and Cloyd, both of Mansfield, two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Maumee, Mansfield, and Mrs. Martha Moore, Columbus; and seven grandchildren.

The body is at the Wappner funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

hint was given of whether they shot down or damaged any enemy planes.

In the event the raiders returned to Paramushiro — 650 miles to the west in the Kurile island chain—they demonstrated in reverse that such bombing raids could be accomplished, once American forces complete the Japanese-started airfield on Attu.

Meantime in the ground battling on the rocky island the enemy has been forced back into the hills, where some small units have dug in for a finish fight.

Tokyo Claims Seven U. S. Ships Damaged

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Tokyo radio broadcast an imperial headquarters communique today saying that Japanese air and naval forces had sunk one American destroyer and damaged six other warships in the Aleutians since May 12, when United States forces began their assault on Attu.

The Japanese claims were entirely without confirmation from any Allied source.

The broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press, listed among the vessels reported damaged a battleship, two cruisers, a destroyer and two other warships of unidentified type.

New Jap Drive In China Forecast

CHUNGKING— (AP) —A large-scale Japanese offensive westward along the Yangtze river—aimed at Chinese river strongholds, and perhaps at the provisional capital itself—appears to be in the making, the semi-official Central News agency said today.

Heavy concentrations of enemy forces in the Ichang area, important Japanese base 460 miles east of Chungking, have been reported by official quarters which said, however, that "the Chinese are well prepared," the agency declared.

"It is anticipated," these quarters were quoted as saying, "that decisive battles soon will be unfolded along the Yangtze in western Hupeh following the battles of the Tungting lake area."

(The Japanese army announced as far back as February it was about to take "all conceivable measures" to crush Chungking and end the war with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government, now almost six years old.)

RAF Batters Jap Railhead In Burma

BULLETIN

NEW DELHI — (AP) — Heavy American bombers pounded the major Japanese supply port of Rangoon and capsized a ship headed for the Burmese harbor Saturday in the face of the first stirrings of the monsoon, a United States communique said today.

NEW DELHI, India — (AP) — The Allied aerial war against Japanese communications in Burma continued yesterday with a heavy RAF bombing of railway objectives at Ye-U, 20 miles northwest of Shwebo, and with day bombings of Akyab island and night attacks on enemy-occupied villages in central Burma, the British announced today.

Buildings and rolling stock at Ye-U were hit by all of the bombs which burst in the target area and many fires were started, a communique said. All Allied planes returned safely.

Allied Bombers Keep Up Pacific Attacks

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA — (AP) — Continuing their persistent attacks on Japanese airdromes in New Britain, Allied bombers yesterday made their 15th consecutive raid on Cape Gdoucester and the 12th straight blow at Gasmata.

Flying Fortresses ranged even farther, attacking the airdrome and harbor at Kavieng, New Ireland. One bomb dropped within 15 feet of an 8,000-ton Japanese cargo ship but the raid was made before dawn and results could not be observed.

RATION FORMS OUT TOMORROW

Mailing of Applications For Book No. 3 To Start; Sugar Confusion Cleared.

board today to fill out applications for additional sugar.

Charles C. Beelman, rationing chairman, said today there is no need for a rush to apply for canning sugar since it may be obtained at any time and no deadline has been set for applications.

Latest Office of Price Administration ruling on the matter is that stamps 15 and 16 of War Ration Book No. 1 are to be good for five pounds of sugar each beginning today. Persons who require more sugar than this may make application at any time for additional amount, Beelman said.

Meanwhile liquor rationing began its second week today after an unusually quiet week-end. Frank C. Poling, manager of the South Park street store, said today that the expected rush Saturday never materialized though the store was ready had it come.

He said that nearly 44,000 persons received their ration books last week. Today those whose surnames begin with M and N were scheduled to receive books; Tuesday, O P Q, and R; Wednesday, S; Thursday, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z, and Friday and Saturday all applicants who have not received their books. Store hours are 11 a. m. to 9 p. m. and applicants must bring with them War Ration Book No. 2.

Other developments on the rationing front today include:

1. Meat and fat rations for loggers, miners, fishermen, sheepherders and others remote from fresh food supplies were doubled today by the OPA. The measure providing 1.8 additional meat points per person per day will go into effect May 29.

2. Red stamps "J," worth 16 points of rationed meats and fats will be good throughout June instead of expiring May 31. Stamps E. F. G. and H, will expire May 31. Stamp J will become valid tomorrow; K, May 30; L. June 6; M. June 13; and N, June 20.

3. Coffee ration for June was increased. Stamp number 24, valid on May 31, will buy one pound of coffee through June 30—a period of one month instead of five weeks.

4. OPA added soft perishable cheeses—such as cream cheese. Neufchatel, Camembert, Liederkrantz, Brie and Blue cheese—to the ration list. Only cottage, bakers', and pot cheese are left off the ration list.

5. OPA authorized householders to use their oil cooking stoves this summer, regardless of the availability of coal or wood-fired stoves, because of the over-all shortage of all fuels.

exceeding the 15-mile speed limit on a 14-degree curve.

Investigations were begun by the railroad, local officials and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The engine, pulling a 13-car train, left the rails on a sharp curve, plunged down an embankment, dragging four of the cars behind it.

All the cars formerly were Pullmans and had been converted to coaches by installation of wooden seats.

Passengers and baggage were hurled to the floor. Screams of women rose above the crash. One car perched atop the engine. Another landed on its side near the tender, with its rear telescoped by the third. The fourth slid underneath the wreckage and two others remained upright, on the right-of-way, tilted rakishly on their crumpled trucks.

Mayor Explains Fund Veto; Kyle Hits At Delay

comply with the law governing his action.

Defending his measure which would have set up a $20,000 reserve fund from parking meter receipts, Kyle said it was "for personal reasons rather than sound business" that the mayor vetoed the ordinance. Kyle said the mayor opposed him "at every opportunity and some of the Republican leaders are trying to purge me from the party at the next election." Kyle is a Republican councilman-at-large.

Kyle pointed out that the Ohio Chamber of Commerce survey report praised the city for setting up a reserve fund for the replacement and rehabilitation of the sewage treatment plant.

If that's commendable, why isn't it a good thing to have a similar fund for parking meters?" Kyle asked.

Mayor Locke said he opposed the measure because it tended to make a banker of the city at a time when the Ohio Chamber of Commerce survey is "criticizing us for piling up unnecessary reserves."

Four of the attacking planes were shot down, it was announced.

Concentrate Attacks On Pantelleria

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—Allied air forces concentrated attacks day and night yesterday on Pantelleria island, 45 miles east of Cap Bon peninsula, hitting shipping in the harbor and aircraft on the ground, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced today.

No figures were immediately available on the number of planes destroyed on the raids, but headquarters communique said two Italian Savoia Machetti-79 bombers were destroyed by Allied fliers Saturday night, bringing the toll of Axis aircraft to at least 307 in five days of raiding Axis facilities in the Mediteranean island approaches to Europe and in Italy itself.

Carloforte harbor and other targets in Sardinia also were attacked by the Northwest African air forces yesterday, P-38 Lightnings carrying out bombing attacks. Two Allied planes were missing from all operations, it was announced.

(Allied planes caused heavy damage in the Messina area, an Italian communique broadcast by the Rome radio said today.)

Pantelleria island, a rocky outcropping in the channel between Tunisia and Sicily, served as an air shipping base for the Axis during the North Africa campaign.

In yesterday's day attack, B-25 Mitchells and B-26 Maurauders escorted by P-40 Warhawks, found five small vessels in the harbor and scored hits on them and on the moles.

Wellington bombers followed up with a night attack, starting a large fire after hitting the harbor and the airfield.

Yesterday's headquarters communique announced 17 more Axis planes were destroyed Saturday on the ground and in the air.

General Eisenhower, in a reply to a mesage from Marshal A. M. Vassilevsky, Russian army chief of staff, congratulating him on the success of the Tunisian battle, said the Axis lost 2,200 planes in the campaign.

A Middle East communique issued today at Cairo disclosed that the railway ferry terminal at San-Giovanni, on the toe of the Italian boot across from Messina in Sicily, was one of the most heavily attacked objectives Saturday night, with ferry berths and railway sidings hit by the bombs.

Allied minesweepers were busy clearing the Mediterranean sea lanes of enemy mines.

De Gaulle Leaves To See Giraud Soon

LONDON —(U.P.)— The French national committee announced today that the way appeared clear for formation of a central authority of anti-Axis French forces and that Gen. Charles De Gaulle probably would leave for Algiers this week for a conference with Gen. Henri Giraud.

The Fighting French announcement said that, after hearing the report of Gen. Georges Catroux, the committee's liaison man, "nothing now appears to oppose speedy formation of a central authority at Algiers."

The communique said that De Gaulle would be accompanied to Algiers, headquarters of Giraud's North African provisional French government, by Rene Massigli, the committee's foreign affairs commissioner, and Andre Phillip, interior and labor commissioner.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

STOCKHOLM—(By Wireless)—Looking out this window to the east, one sees another appalling example of how the Nazis miss their opportunities. This is in connection with their occupation of the three Baltic states—Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

When the Germans drove the Russians out of these countries the people hailed the Nazis as liberators. That lasted about a month. The conduct of the Germans quickly chilled the population, and provided another example of the remarkable gift of the Nazis for making themselves the most hated people in Europe.

Clapper

The Russians had treated the Baltic peoples badly. The Germans took up where the Russians had left off. They didn't give back the property taken away by the Russians. Soon the people began saying the Nazis were just Russians in another uniform. They called the Nazi officials "brown commissars."

There seems to have been even less excuse for the Germans alienating these peoples than some of the others, since they put the administration of the Baltic states under Alfred Rosenberg, who, though an original Nazi, was born in Estonia.

The Russians had instituted a brutal regime when they got into the Baltic states soon after the outbreak of the war in Europe. They took over industries, making the former owners their temporary managers. There were heavy deportations. For instance, Estonia, having a population of 1,100,000, had 30,000 deported. And that phase had just begun. Then the Germans moved in. The Russians' conduct in the Baltic states was used by the Swedes as an example of how Russia would behave if she became a permanent neighbor. Thus Swedish fears were aggravated and Swedish sympathies for Finland strengthened. Why won't nations learn that they do not get lasting results by pushing people around?

The Nazis were aware of the effect the Russian treatment of the Baltic peoples had had in Sweden. Yet when the Nazis drove the Russians out in the summer of 1941 they repeated the same blunders.

The Germans held onto property that the Russians had confiscated, on the theory that it belonged to the German state after its capture from the Russian state. Instead of restoring it to the original owners, the Germans are distributing the property to their own people as a means of establishing complete economic control. They have taken over textile factories, 32 distilling and alcohol plants the entire tobacco industry, electrical utilities, movies, dairies, co-operatives—in short, the main industries. The Jews were driven out. It was rather bad treatment all around, with heavy labor drafts. Estonia is regarded as the closest to Germany among the Baltic states, so the Nazis have granted the Estonians the right to intermarry with German citizens.

Here again it is the story of Holland and Norway and all the other occupied countries except Denmark, which—in spite of the Nazi effort to make the Danes into model teachers' pets, allowing them more meat than the Germans get—has increasing sabotage and ever more grudging cooperation.

Only Finland seems to be a willing captive. The Finnish people are friendly enough to us, but so long as we are on the same side as Russia there is not much chance that the Finns will break away from Germany to help us. One wing of the Finnish labor party has been arguing that Germany is losing the war and that Finland should change her policy, but the premier's latest statement ends that agitation, while the political police, headed by an imitation of the Nazi Himmler, probably will continue intimidating friends of the Allies.

Arguments evidently are futile with the Finnish authorities, who are putting all their chips on Germany.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

LOS ANGELES—While I am on the subject of the movies and films which are either openly pro-Communist or accomplish this effect by disparagement of American institutions and ways, I might as well give you a report on another new picture done by Warner Brothers, the same who turned out the version of Joseph Davies' "Mission to Moscow." This one is about the heroic service of the civilian sailors of the merchant marine and a very fine picture, too, but a stupendous plug for the maritime union which is a strict party-line organization.

Pegler

There are other unions of seafarers but the action takes place in New York and on the run to Murmansk and the national maritime union runs things in that area. That being the case I think it is only fair to grant that realism justifies the identification of the union and the footage shot in the union's hiring hall.

But the propaganda lies in negative effects which is to say in omissions for, inasmuch as Warners were going in for realism, they could have been realistic, too, about the contrast between the pay of the enlisted naval gunners of the armed guard and that of the civilian sailors, with their bonuses and overtime for exactly the same risks.

They might have been expected to show a union meeting on board and a delegation calling on the skipper with demands backed by an organization which picketed the White House against American aid to Britain before Hitler attacked Russia. There is not a hint of any such things except one mention, consisting of perhaps half a dozen words, on the subject of the merchant sailors' bonus money, nor is there any recognition of class feeling against the young naval lieutenant in command of the armed guard.

When the enlisted sailors first come aboard with their bags there is a little merrymaking at their expense because of their youth and inexperience of the sea but it passes off in pleasant temper and later on the lieutenant orders some of the civilian sailors to understudy his men and learn the rudiments of gunnery in case of need, wherein, I believe, he exceeded his authority for union men, even at sea, retain their civilian independence. However, the union men do fall to and learn their lessons and I think that probably is realistic, too, for, after all, by no means all of the members joined the union because they wanted to and it does not follow, either that a man follows the communist line because his union does.

Moreover, this union is now trying to eliminate the navy from the merchant ships of the American people and take over the guns itself. As long as the navy is aboard the guns are in charge of an element of men of sworn patriotism to the United States and to no other nation.

I believe and insist that the realities of unionism at sea and the character of this union and its history of adherence to the Communist party of the U. S. A. which our department of justice had identified as an organization hostile to this government deserved recognition in any film purporting to give a factual picture of the situation. You will find nothing of the kind in this one but, you get a very nice impression of the national maritime union quite contrary to the impression that would be made on you by perusal of its official publication, The Pilot, of which I am a constant reader. No communism is preached at the American naval sailors at any time, there is no discussion of the disparity in pay for equal risk and hardship and the union sailors appear willing to do anything that needs doing at any time without any mention of overtime pay which might disquiet some of the people at home whose sons are serving the guns on the same vessels for straight navy pay.

I would settle for very little corrective footage in this propaganda film but that little would be very effective and would undeceive the public as to the character of the organization which here appears to be utterly American. I would settle for a few flashes of page one of The Pilot between Hitler's opening attack on Poland, his unwise march against Russia, flashes showing the pickets in New York and Washington and the opposition to the draft and every other American preparation for war and the denunciation of all who favored and voted for such measures as warmongers. If in the interests of realism and truth, Warners want to insert this enlightening material the Dies committee, I am sure, would be glad to give it to them free.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

AMONG the stock characters in the nocturnal drama who have not escaped the attention of tunesmiths and playwrights and hacks are the lassies behind the trays. The girls who slither through the smoke-filled places laden with cigars, cigarets and small souvenirs have been prominently involved (in prototype of course) in the plots of motion pictures and stage melodramas. Fiction tales have taken inspiration from the sisterhood of smoke-suppliers. Songs, too. Songs like the poignant 'Cigarets—Cigars" which Ruth Etting introduced in the Ziegfeld Follies in 1931.

Kilgallen

If you know them, cigaret girls are like girls anywhere. They like this and they don't like that, they're in love, they're out of love, they're full of ambitions—all different, of course. Their hours and salaries are about the same and they all agree about what to do on the job they believe, unanimously, that it's important to look ornamental and to look the other way when some suddenly smitten chap starts to act sentimental. But there the resemblance of one tray-toter to another ends.

Take the girl who is one of the most beautiful of the clan—Madeline Grady of the Coq Rouge. Madeline has shoulder-length tresses the color of blue-black ink, great luminous dark eyes, olive skin and teeth that are dazzling white and so even they look as if they had been drawn in with a carefully measured ruler. She is so pretty that whenever James Montgomery Flagg buys a pack of his favorites he asks her when she is going to quit her job and come to work for him as a model. Madeline always smiles, says little, and does nothing about it. The answer is, she isn't.

Madeline is one cigaret girl who didn't take that job because it might land her a job in the movies or on the stage or in the magazine illustrations. This is her first fling at tobacco-vending; she got the post as a present to herself on her 21st birthday, because she was tired of the glamor game—a game she'd been playing ever since she won a Beautiful Child contest at the age of five. Madeline has been a Thornton model, and as Louise Michaels she decorated the stage in "Hold Onto Your Hats" and "Too Many Girls."

She was briefly and unhappily married at the age of 18 and has a two-year-old son. She loves to cook, dislikes furs, but appreciates nice jewelry; and she is one of the best bowlers ever to elicit "bravas" from the boys at the Roxy alley. She tells you she isn't interested in romance . . . but it seems there is a fellow named Capt. Steve Montgomery in the RAF.

And Madeline wears a pair of silver wings.

Patricia Miles, the Circe of the ciggies at El Morocco, is blond and baby-voiced, and one of the best-known cigaret girls in New York. Her picture has adorned the cover of Cosmopolitan, she has won beauty contests and she is determined to become a screen siren. The way she puts it is "I'll get to Hollywood—definitely—wait and see—I'll get there even if I have to FLY." This little lady and Madeline Grady are definitely not sisters under the skin.

PLEDGES ARMY WON'T MOVE IN ON FARM AREAS

Patterson Gives Promise, Says Congressman Investigating Manpower Problems.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson has given his assurance that the army will not send "military farmers" to work in the agricultural areas, it was disclosed today by Rep. Martin (R.), Iowa.

At the same time, Martin, a member of the house military affairs committee, said he had warned War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt of the "critical labor shortage" existing in the farm belt as planting time approaches and asked "what is being done?"

McNutt replied only that "he had given it some thought," Martin asserted.

An outspoken critic of the war department's plan to send military organizations into farm regions to work the fields, Martin said he had "challenged" Patterson on the soundness of such a policy.

"Patterson has assured me however, that such a move would not be resorted to except in case of extreme emergencies, such as floods and disasters," Martin said.

The Iowa congressman said he was convinced that agricultural functions of military men on the farm would not be "an efficient use of manpower."

He said further that procedure for securing army discharges for farm workers drafted into service is a "slow process at best" in view of the emergency needs in the farm regions.

"It is the desire of most army officers, however, to cooperate with the food production program wherever possible," Martin added. "But the army will not discharge men who have had intensive or specialized training and whose services are needed in the war program."

"Within the last few weeks, discharge procedures have been decentralized, with final authority for a man's release left to the commanding general in the field," he said.

KNOX LOOKS TO CONFLICT'S END

Warns of Danger To Society Disorderly Demobilization Would Involve.

(By United Press)

BETHANY, W. Va.—A disorderly demobilization of American fighting men after the war "may well be a devastating shock to our society" and result in the loss of "the very democratic principles for which we fight," Secretary of Navy Frank Knox said here.

"When the war is over and the victory is won there will be a loud clamor to 'send the boys home'," Knox said at the 102nd commencement exercises at Bethany college yesterday.

"If the demobilization is disorderly it may well be a devastating shock to our society," he said. "Millions of young men will have to be absorbed in industry, business, agriculture and education. I hope and pray the opportunities will be there and that we will contrive an orderly demobilization.

"The problem demands our best thinking and planning, lest through chaotic demobilization we lose the very democratic principles for which we fight."

Knox said that 400 schools and colleges have arranged with the navy to train 80,000 students simultaneously and for definite schedules of mobilization.

Pointing out that education at the college level today "can only be justified now insofar as the young man or women is prepared thereby for war," the secretary urged educators to plan now to make higher education available to the masses after the war.

Can you imagine being fined for driving a horse over a bridge at a pace faster than a walk? Well, it did happen back in 1869. Ray Hout, county commissioner, in going through some old papers in his grandfather's desk, found a receipt for $6, fine for driving too fast. The lawbreaker was apprehended when he charged across the Hostetter bridge in Mifflin township, October, 1868. But if travel was slow in those days so were the wheels of justice. The receipt was dated March, 1869.

"Infirmities of age" brought an end to the 12-year life span of what was probably Mansfield's best known dog—"King," the fine big black pedigreed pointer which John S. Jones reared from puppyhood. No outing was complete without the companionship of "King," who made friendships quickly and became known to thousands of Mansfield children as well as adults. "King" was one of the sort of dogs that lived up to requirements for being designated as "man's best friend."

'GAS' REVENUE FALLS SHARPLY

State To Collect 12 Million Less For Highway and Street Purposes.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A slump in revenue from the three-cent gasoline tax during the first four months of 1943 indicated today there would be approximately $12,000,000 less available for street and highway purposes this year than last, a state highway department survey reported.

The tax yield was only $10,184,000 up to May 1 of this year, as compared with $13,189,000 in the corresponding 1942 period, the survey showed.

If this ratio prevails throughout 1943, income from the tax would total $29,225,000 against $37,539,000 in 1942. An anticipated further drop in automobile use with the resulting decline in the three-cent motor vehicle fuel tax yield would bring the estimated net income to between $23,000,000 and $25,000,000, the survey added.

Income from this levy for street and highway use is divided thus: state system highways, 56¼ per cent; counties, 16¼ per cent; townships, 8¾ per cent, and cities, 18¾ per cent.

Starts 21st Week With Several Pieces of 'Must' Business To Be Disposed of.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Hoping to make Friday its last working day, the Ohio legislature tonight begins its 21st week of its 95th session with several pieces of "must" legislation remaining to be enacted.

Three school bills, the $368,000,000 general appropriations bill, the sundry claims bill, and the bill to provide for the payment of additional unemployment insurance premiums by war-expanded industries must be agreed upon before the solons can go home. If that program takes them beyond Friday, as some senate leaders say it will, the session will have to be extended.

In addition, Sen. Stanley Mechem (R-Nelsonville) will have his last chance of introducing his "daylight savings" time bill, which would give Ohio "fast" or Eastern War Time until Oct. 1, with "slow" or Central War Time from then until next April 1.

"It looks like the sensible thing to do," Senator Mechem said, "but I intend to talk to the governor about it."

The legislature early in the session enacted "slow" time for Ohio as an aid to the farmers, but the cities have failed to go along.

The house judiciary committee was to meet this afternoon for what it hoped would be its final hearing on the Whittemore bill, to provide for a surtax in addition to the regular unemployment insurance premium to be paid by war industries that have expanded more than 50 per cent. The surtax is designed to provide an additional $8,000,000 or so annually to build up a cushion against post-war unemployment.

Tomorrow, the house education committee will meet to take final action on a bill providing a $1,500,000 fund for the rehabilitation of weak school districts and the payment of back salaries to teachers.

House and senate are agreed upon the amount of the fund, but differ as to its distribution. The senate passed the bill leaving the distribution discretionary with the education department; the house would allocate it according to a strict formula.

JAPS FAIL IN EFFORT TO HIT YANKS FROM AIR

15 Bombers 'Unsuccessful' In Attack on Navy Ships at Attu In Aleutians.

hint was given of whether they shot down or damaged any enemy planes.

In the event the raiders returned to Paramushiro — 630 miles to the west in the Kurile island chain—they demonstrated in reverse that such bombing raids could be accomplished, once American forces complete the Japanese-started airfield on Attu.

Meantime in the ground battling on the rocky island the enemy has been forced back into the hills, where some small units have dug in for a finish fight.

Tokyo Claims Seven U. S. Ships Damaged

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Tokyo radio broadcast an imperial headquarters communique today saying that Japanese air and naval forces had sunk one American destroyer and damaged six other warships in the Aleutians since May 12, when United States forces began their assault on Attu.

The Japanese claims were entirely without confirmation from any Allied source.

The broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press, listed among the vessels reported damaged a battleship, two cruisers, a destroyer and two other warships of unidentified type.

New Jap Drive In China Forecast

CHUNGKING— (AP) —A large-scale Japanese offensive westward along the Yangtze river—aimed at Chinese river strongholds, and perhaps at the provisional capital itself—appears to be in the making, the semi-official Central News agency said today.

Heavy concentrations of enemy forces in the Ichang area, important Japanese base 460 miles east of Chungking, have been reported by official quarters which said, however, that "the Chinese are well prepared," the agency declared.

"It is anticipated," these quarters were quoted as saying, "that decisive battles soon will be unfolded along the Yangtze in western Hupeh following the battles of the Tungting lake area."

(The Japanese army announced as far back as February it was about to take "all conceivable measures" to crush Chungking and end the war with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government, now almost six years old.)

RAF Batters Jap Railhead In Burma

BULLETIN

NEW DELHI — (AP) — Heavy American bombers pounded the major Japanese supply port of Rangoon and capsized a ship headed for the Burmese harbor Saturday in the face of the first stirrings of the monsoon, a United States communique said today.

NEW DELHI, India — (AP) — The Allied aerial war against Japanese communications in Burma continued yesterday with a heavy RAF bombing of railway objectives at Ye-U, 20 miles northwest of Shwebo, and with day bombings of Akyab island and night attacks on enemy-occupied villages in central Burma, the British announced today.

Buildings and rolling stock at Ye-U were hit by all of the bombs which burst in the target area and many fires were started, a communique said. All Allied planes returned safely.

Allied Bombers Keep Up Pacific Attacks

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA — (AP) — Continuing their persistent attacks on Japanese airdromes in New Britain, Allied bombers yesterday made their 15th consecutive raid on Cape Gdoucester and the 12th straight blow at Gasmata.

Flying Fortresses ranged even farther, attacking the airdrome and harbor at Kavieng, New Ireland. One bomb dropped within 15 feet of an 8,000-ton Japanese cargo ship but the raid was made before dawn and results could not be observed.

RATION FORMS OUT TOMORROW

Mailing of Applications For Book No. 3 To Start; Sugar Confusion Cleared.

board today to fill out applications for additional sugar.

Charles C. Beelman, rationing chairman, said today there is no need for a rush to apply for canning sugar since it may be obtained at any time and no deadline has been set for applications.

Latest Office of Price Administration ruling on the matter is that stamps 15 and 16 of War Ration Book No. 1 are to be good for five pounds of sugar each beginning today. Persons who require more sugar than this may make application at any time for additional amount, Beelman said.

Meanwhile liquor rationing began its second week today after an unusually quiet week-end. Frank C. Poling, manager of the South Park street store, said today that the expected rush Saturday never materialized though the store was ready had it come.

He said that nearly 44,000 persons received their ration books last week. Today those whose surnames begin with M and N were scheduled to receive books: Tuesday, O P Q, and R; Wednesday, S; Thursday, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z, and Friday and Saturday all applicants who have not received their books. Store hours are 11 a. m. to 9 p. m. and applicants must bring with them War Ration Book No. 2.

Other developments on the rationing front today include:

1. Meat and fat rations for loggers, miners, fishermen, sheepherders and others remote from fresh food supplies were doubled today by the OPA. The measure providing 1.8 additional meat points per person per day will go into effect May 29.

2. Red stamps "J," worth 16 points of rationed meats and fats will be good throughout June instead of expiring May 31. Stamps E, F, G, and H, will expire May 31. Stamp J will become valid tomorrow; K, May 30; L, June 6; M June 13; and N, June 20.

3. Coffee ration for June was increased. Stamp number 24, valid on May 31, will buy one pound of coffee through June 30—a period of one month instead of five weeks.

4. OPA added soft perishable cheeses—such as cream cheese, Neufchatel, Camembert, Liederkrantz, Brie and Blue cheese—to the ration list. Only cottage, bakers', and pot cheese are left off the ration list.

5. OPA authorized householders to use their oil cooking stoves this summer, regardless of the availability of coal or wood-fired stoves, because of the over-all shortage of all fuels.

exceeding the 15-mile speed limit on a 14-degree curve.

Investigations were begun by the railroad, local officials and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The engine, pulling a 15-car train, left the rails on a sharp curve, plunged down an embankment, dragging four of the cars behind it.

All the cars formerly were Pullmans and had been converted to coaches by installation of wooden seats.

Passengers and baggage were hurled to the floor. Screams of women rose above the crash. One car perched atop the engine. Another landed on its side near the tender, with its rear telescoped by the third. The fourth slid underneath the wreckage and two others remained upright, on the right-of-way, tilted rakishly on their crumpled trucks.

Mayor Explains Fund Veto; Kyle Hits At Delay

comply with the law governing his action.

Defending his measure which would have set up a $20,000 reserve fund from parking meter receipts, Kyle said it was "for personal reasons rather than sound business" that the mayor vetoed the ordinance. Kyle said the mayor opposed him "at every opportunity and some of the Republican leaders are trying to purge me from the party at the next election." Kyle is a Republican councilman-at-large.

Kyle pointed out that the Ohio Chamber of Commerce survey report praised the city for setting up a reserve fund for the replacement and rehabilitation of the sewage treatment plant.

If that's commendable, why isn't it a good thing to have a similar fund for parking meters?" Kyle asked.

Mayor Locke said he opposed the measure because it tended to make a banker of the city at a time when the Ohio Chamber of Commerce survey is "criticizing us for piling up unnecessary reserves."

Concentrate Attacks On Pantelleria

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—Allied air forces concentrated attacks day and night yesterday on Pantelleria island, 45 miles east of Cap Bon peninsula, hitting shipping in the harbor and aircraft on the ground, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced today.

No figures were immediately available on the number of planes destroyed on the raids, but headquarters communique said two Italian Savoia Machetti-79 bombers were destroyed by Allied fliers Saturday night, bringing the toll of Axis aircraft to at least 307 in five days of raiding Axis facilities in the Mediteranean island approaches to Europe and in Italy itself.

Carloforte harbor and other targets in Sardinia also were attacked by the Northwest African air forces yesterday, P-38 Lightnings carrying out bombing attacks. Two Allied planes were missing from all operations, it was announced.

(Allied planes caused heavy damage in the Messina area, an Italian communique broadcast by the Rome radio said today.)

Pantelleria island, a rocky outcropping in the channel between Tunisia and Sicily, served as an air shipping base for the Axis during the North Africa campaign.

In yesterday's day attack, B-25 Mitchells and B-26 Maurauders escorted by P-40 Warhawks, found five small vessels in the harbor and scored hits on them and on the moles.

Wellington bombers followed up with a night attack, starting a large fire after hitting the harbor and the airfield.

Yesterday's headquarters communique announced 17 more Axis planes were destroyed Saturday on the ground and in the air.

General Eisenhower, in a reply to a mesage from Marshal A. M. Vassilevsky, Russian army chief of staff, congratulating him on the success of the Tunisian battle, said the Axis lost 2,200 planes in the campaign.

A Middle East communique issued today at Cairo disclosed that the railway ferry terminal at San-Giovanni, on the toe of the Italian boot across from Messina in Sicily, was one of the most heavily attacked objectives Saturday night, with ferry berths and railway sidings hit by the bombs.

Allied minesweepers were busy clearing the Mediterranean sea lanes of enemy mines.

De Gaulle Leaves To See Giraud Soon

LONDON —(U.P.)— The French national committee announced today that the way appeared clear for formation of a central authority of anti-Axis French forces and that Gen. Charles De Gaulle probably would leave for Algiers this week for a conference with Gen. Henri Giraud.

The Fighting French announcement said that, after hearing the report of Gen. Georges Catroux, the committee's liaison man, "nothing now appears to oppose speedy formation of a central authority at Algiers."

The communique said that De Gaulle would be accompanied to Algiers, headquarters of Giraud's North African provisional French government, by Rene Massigli, the committee's foreign affairs commissioner, and Andre Phillip, interior and labor commissioner.
